INTRODUCTION.

On June 11, 1805, the village of Detroit was reduced to ashes. The real cause of the fire was never discovered, but it was attributed to the carelessness of someone who lighted a "segar" in the stable of John Harvey's bakery, near the center of the town. The fire broke out about 9 a. m., and by noon only two buildings were left standing. Even the citadel, which was quite detached from the town and contained barracks, officers quarters and contractors' stores, was wiped out. Detroit at that time was the seat of government of the Territory and contained about 300 houses built of wood and all huddled together within the space now bounded by Griswold, Cass and Larned Streets.

Congress, by an act of January 11, 1805, had set off Michigan as a separate territory and had appointed Gen. William Hull, governor of the new territory, Rev. Stanley Griswold, secretary, and Augustus B. Woodward and Frederick Bates, judges. This act was not to go into effect until July 1, 1805, and the new officers were to enter upon their duties at that time; therefore it was this scene of desolation and confusion which confronted them.

Bates had been living in Detroit prior to the fire and was in business there. Judge Woodward arrived on the 29th of June, and Governor Hull the evening of July 1st, in company with Secretary Griswold. Upon their arrival they found that the inhabitants had begun to lay out a new town nearly on the lines of the old one, but including the "common," which they had used as a common pasture since the settlement of the country. Hull and Woodward persuaded them against such a plan and showed them the advisability of enlarging the town, widening the streets and making a more beautiful place. They agreed to wait for the governor and judges to draw up a plan. In a letter to Madison, August 3rd, 1805, Hull writes: "We immediately fixed up a plan, and employed the best surveyor we could find in the country to lay out the streets, squares and lots. If possible the plan shall be transmitted by this conveyance. I hope it will be approved by the government. The principal part of the grounds embraced by the plan belong to the United States without a question. Many of the lots in the old town are cut up by the streets, which has reduced us to the necessity of exchanging them for lots on the domain or common. We have likewise from the necessity of the case, concluded to sell as many lots on the domain or common as will be necessary for the accommodation of those citizens who wish to build this town, and did not own lots in the town. This rule, however, we make expressly subject to the ratification of congress. We think we have great reason to believe our conduct will be approved; because we obtain two important objects by it; first, a town or city laid out on a regular plan; secondly, the accommodation of those people who have suffered by the late calamity. And I have no doubt, but a third will be obtained, viz, the value of the land of the United States, will be greatly increased." (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vol. 31, pp. 524-525.) The plan as drawn up was presented to the people and signed on July 19, 1805, by some twenty odd who had suffered losses in the destruction of the town. Comparing this with a list of property owners (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vol. 36, p. 114) who had made a return of their losses on June 24, 1805, there were some who had not been reckoned with. Some of the inhabitants, destitute of shelter and seeing that the government had no authority to give them immediate help in selecting a site, rebuilt on their former ground; others took possession of the public lands, trusting to the liberality of the government to either make them a donation of the ground as a compensation for their sufferings, or to accept a very moderate price for it. They did not all agree upon the plan drawn up by the governor and judges and there was no civil authority to decide claims or pass upon a plan to be adopted. However, Hull proceeded with his plan for the new town; had it surveyed and laid out, and lots were advertised for sale with the understanding that all titles were subject to the approval of congress. "Where the purchaser of a lot was a proprietor in the old town, he was at liberty to extinguish his former property in his new acquisition, foot for foot, and was expected to pay only for the surplus, at the rate expressed in his bid," reported Hull and Woodward, October 10, 1805. (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vol. 36, p. 105.) They went on to say that part of the inhabitants of the old town were only tenants, as there had been no means of acquiring any new titles. The sale of lots was not to be confined to former proprietors, but as far as possible to former inhabitants. After the sale of a considerable part by auction the rest was to be disposed of by private contract. As soon as the necessities of the inhabitants were accommodated the sales were to stop until they could learn the pleasure of the government. No titles could be confirmed and no money was to be taken until the expiration of a year. In that time Hull hoped that congress would have had time to act. Thus the inhabitants were enabled to erect buildings in order to shelter themselves from the approaching winter. On the 11th of October, Hull found it necessary to return to his home in Newton, Mass., but wrote Madison that he would be in Washington the beginning of winter (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vol. 31, p. 540) in order to propose measures for the good of the Territory. During his absence Stanley Griswold was acting governor. Chief Justice Woodward left for Washington at the same time. Their report was presented by President Jefferson to congress, December 23, 1805. It dragged along, nothing was done, and finally on January 24, 1806, Hull went on to Massachusetts. On April 30, 1806, he wrote from Albany, on his way to Detroit, picturing the discontent of the people of the Territory if he should return without having accomplished anything in their behalf. Woodward had remained in Washington, working with the committee appointed to report on the Michigan affairs. (Territories, Woodward's letter, March 12, 1806.) On April 2nd, 1806, an "act to provide for the adjustment of titles of land in the Territory of Michigan and other purposes" was passed by the house. In the senate it was amended April 19th and sent back to the house, where it was passed as amended, "An act to provide for the adjustment of titles of land in the Town of Detroit and Territory of Michigan and for other purposes," April 21st, 1806.

In June, Hull returned to Detroit and was greeted with addresses of welcome and congratulation. Woodward and John Griffin, a newly-appointed judge, arrived somewhat later, and on the 6th of September, 1806, the board of commissioners commenced their work under the act of congress of April 21, 1806. This meeting was held at Hull's house, which was one of the first houses erected. Hull, Woodward and Bates were present. Peter Audrain was made secretary and Asa Jones sergeant-at-arms. The first act of the governor and judges was to pass a resolution to lay out and survey a town, and to adjust titles and claims. There is no known map of the town as it was planned by Hull and Woodward immediately after the fire. Whatever that plan may have been, they now resolved that the basis of the town should be an equilateral triangle having each side 4,000 feet and having each angle bisected by a perpendicular line upon the opposite side, an elaborate plan originating with Judge Woodward. Public squares, spaces, avenues, streets and lanes were laid out. Main Street ran parallel with the river; Court House Avenue, at right angles with it, was the present Woodward Avenue, and East and West Street ran on the lines of Michigan Avenue and Cadillac Square. Military Square was the site of the present Campus Martius and a circus was the site of the present Grand Circus Park.

This plan was a unit which was repeated many times in the original drawing, but as the city grew the idea was abandoned and a more conventional type followed. Only that portion of the city south of Adams Avenue and bounded on the east by Brush Street and on the west by Cass Street shows any trace of Woodward's original plan.

According to the act of 1806, every sufferer by the fire, above seventeen years of age on the 11th of June, 1805, and who lived in the city at the time of the fire, should be granted by the governor and judges a lot not exceeding 5,000 square feet, where they judged most proper. Trouble immediately arose over the location of the donation lots. On November 13, 1806, Hull wrote: "The donees contended that it was the intention of congress that they should have the most valuable lots, and all who had purchased lots from this government, insisted on these lots being considered as donations." (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vol 31, p. 569). The board thought the best lots ought not to be given as donations because there were not enough to go around, and immediately passed such resolutions as: "Resolved, that the five lots opposite Scott's, Wilkinson's, Abbott's, Abbott and Smith's and Godfroy, Jr.'s be sold at public auction." These lots were on the east side of what is today Woodward Avenue and extend from the river up about one block. "Resolved, that no lots on the Main Street, on either side of the Main Street, or between the Main Street and the Detroit River, can be given as donations to the sufferers by the fire." "Resolved, that none of the lots on the Court House Avenue, eastward of the court, or any of the corner lots on the Military Square, be given as donations."

“Resolved, that no corner lots be given for a donation.” These resolutions drew forth a memorial from the inhabitants of the town, signed by Robert Abbott, John Harvey, Hugh R. Martin, John Gentle and John R. Williams, which was presented October 9, 1806, remonstrating against the system of distributing donation lots. The board of commissioners answered this memorial, inviting the inhabitants to elect a committee authorized to act with the board in devising a better scheme. A report was made and referred to a committee consisting of Judges Woodward and Bates. A classified list of the donees was supplied by John Dode-mead and on October 25th the report was brought forward and discussed. (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vol. 31, pp. 574-583). The discussion resulted in the resignation of Judge Woodward on November 5, 1806. (Id., Vol. 31, pp. 566-568). No meetings were held from that day until November 10th, when Hull made a resolution allotting the most valuable public lots to those entitled to donations after the necessary public reservations were made. He also presented the following resolution: “Three members not being agreed with respect to the location of donation lots granted by congress to the inhabitants of the Town of Detroit; and that act requiring the concurrence of three members to carry it into effect, any further attempts under the present state of things must apparently be fruitless, no other course but a suspension of our duties under this law seems to present itself, however it may impede the progress of the city, whatever inconvenience it may produce to the inhabitants, or embarrassment to the government, it seems to be dictated by imperious necessity.

“Thereupon, resolved, that the duties of the governor and judges under the act of congress entitled, An act to provide for the adjustment of titles of land in the Town of Detroit, and Territory of Michigan, and for other purposes, be suspended.” This resolution was, however, postponed for further consideration by Judge Bates. It has the appearance of a concession and probably brought Woodward back, for on the 11th of November he returned, and after making a motion that the resolution passed the day previous respecting what lots shall be allowed for donations be rescinded, he then moved, and it was “Resolved, that to every person who has purchased a lot in the New Town, and who is entitled to a donation, such Lot shall be conveyed as a donation, unless the same may have been disposed of by the person, and then the payment therefor, shall be to the public treasury; and when a married man has purchased more lots than one, no more than one of them shall be conveyed as a donation; and when a person has purchased, who is not entitled to a donation, the price shall be considered as a donation, and given to the donees as donations." Hull's letter of November 13, 1806, says: "The governor and judges have now agreed on a system which I believe will give general satisfaction. The storms seem to have abated and I presume everything will be tranquil."

On November 15th Woodward presented the plan recommended by the committee.

"All those belonging to the first class, who have improved the lots now in their possession, we conceive, ought to retain them for their donation, or in exchange for an equal quantity of ground in the old town, paying for the surplus feet, agreeable to the conditions of the sale, to wit: two cents for each square foot;

"All lots that the legislative board have disposed of since the act of congress, or remain unsold, together with those that are improved, ought to be numbered, and ballotted by the claimants of the first class, that are not satisfied;

"All those persons who have built dwelling-houses on lots considered to be in the first class, and who are claimants in the second class, shall retain said lots, by paying to the persons in the first class, who draw the lots, two cents for each square foot, in the course of twelve months. Those who are not claimants, having built a dwelling house on a lot in the first class, ought to pay the persons drawing said lot, the same price that the legislative board were to receive;

"It is understood by the committee that the lots for the first class should be those fronting in the Court House Avenue, from the river to the corner lots on the north side of the Main Street, inclusive, and those on the street commonly called Main Street;

"The claimants in the second class ought to have the next choice of the best lots remaining after the first class are satisfied, and to have their claims adjusted on the same system with the first class;

"The claimants in the third class should have the next choice of the best lots remaining after the second class are satisfied, and the system taken to adjust their claims to be the same as recommended for the first class."

This resolution met with approval and was passed.

The work of the commissioners now progressed more smoothly but not without some friction. On November 21, 1806, Governor Hull was appointed a committee to sit during the recess of the board with the power to enquire who were entitled to donations and to assign the same. On January 21, 1807, he made an elaborate report which was passed on the 23rd.

The commissioners met two or three times a week until the 2nd of June, Hull and Woodward frequently differing over the assigning of lots. At the meeting of June 1st, 1807, Woodward was appointed a committee to act during the recess of the board in adjusting the titles and in distributing the donations. On July 18, 1807, he wrote to Madison: "The town titles will be definitely arranged as soon as the military reservation is made. We gave great dissatisfaction in the distribution of the donations. Mr. Bates and myself were clearly of the opinion that the donations should not be suffered to run foul of the adjustments of the ancient titles. The governor gave way to the public storm. As their wish was, however, impracticable in its own nature, not from the mere reluctance of those who were to make the distribution, we have been constantly obliged painfully to tread back upon our steps, and none of us have given satisfaction to the people. Perhaps none could have done it under the jealousies and dissensions prevailing among them. But they would have been more respectful toward their government if it had been steady and firm; on one side desiring nothing wrong, and not to be driven from what they knew to be right on the other." (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vol. 12, p. 507).

From June 2, 1807, until October 24, 1808, all records of the board have disappeared. Whether Woodward acted as a committee during all that time is not shown in any papers so far discovered. During this time a quarrel arose between Hull and Griswold. In order to avoid the enmity of either, Woodward took up his residence at River Raisin. From here he wrote on March 8, 1808, that he had had no intercourse with the secretary for sixteen months and with Hull for eight months. He considered Griswold's actions malicious intrigues against Hull with the intent to injure that gentleman's reputation. A few days later came the news of Hull's reappointment as governor of Michigan Territory.

Griswold was soon replaced by Reuben Atwater and peace was restored. On October 24, 1808, the land board resumed its meetings and continued as in the following record.

Territory of Michigan:

The attorney-general of the territory hath been honoured with the receipt of a question, proposed to him by the honorable, the legislature thereof, which if he were to answer in the form that it is presented, without anticipating the wishes of the legislature, he could not but say that the fee of these lots now in the City of Detroit which were deeded by the governor and judges as commissioners under the act of congress of the 21st of April, 1806, to the president, directors and company of the Detroit Bank still remains there; because by the question as it is proposed, it is not shown that there ever has been a transfer of the fee by the said corporation, or that the said corporation hath ever been by any means dissolved or that it has forfeited its charter. But, anticipating the wishes of the legislature on this subject, he has taken the liberty of varying the question and reducing it to such form as to afford an answer to the case as it really is at the present time.

Question: The governor and judges of Michigan, on the 19th day of September, 1806, adopted a law incorporating a bank at Detroit under the name of The President, Directors, and Company of the Detroit Bank to whom, as commissioners under the act of the congress of the United States of the 21st April, 1806, they did deed in fee simple absolute, two certain lots of ground in the City of Detroit, subsequent to this and on the third day of March, 1807, the aforesaid law incorporating the Bank of Detroit aforesaid was negatived by congress by reason whereof the said incorporation became dissolved; the question then is, in whom is the fee of these lots vested that were thus deeded as aforesaid to the corporation, they having never made any disposition of the same.

Answer: There are in general two kinds of incorporations, aggregate and sole; created either by the common law, by legislative authority, as by acts of parliament, by prescription or by charter. To a corporation created by any of the foregoing means, they have incident to them certain things, and that, too, without any express words in their charter to authorize them, as for example, to purchase and alien lands, to sue and be sued, implead and be impleaded; so likewise are they liable to lose their corporate franchise and be destroyed in a variety of different ways and means, as for example, in a corporate sole by a reunion with itself, an antecedent corporate right granted out. So likewise in aggregate corporations by surrender, by forfeiture, and last by the dissolution of its corporate franchise by legislative authority which Mr. Blackstone considers as boundless in its operation.

The question, then what is to become of the lands that a corporation thus dissolved were seized and possessed of at the time of its dissolution; these agreeable to the common law of England must revert to the grantor, donor or their heirs, for the law saith the same learned authority, doth always annex a condition to every such grant; that if the corporation be dissolved, the grantor shall have the lands again, because the cause of the grant faileth, which in contemplation of law is only supposed to be made during the life of the corporation and this is said to be the only instance where a reversion can be expected on a grant in fee simple absolute.

With very great respect, I have the honor to be the legislature's most obedient and very humble servant,

E. BRUSH.

On Tuesday, the 9th May, 1809, the commissioners met pursuant to adjournment. Present: Reuben Attwater, acting governor; John Griffin and James Witherell, judges.

Ordered, that the secretary cause the following address and report of progress to be transmitted to the congress of the United States:

"To the honorable congress of the United States: Pursuant to an act of congress, entitled "An act to provide for the adjustment of titles of land in the Town of Detroit and Territory of Michigan and for other purposes," the governor and judges of said Territory have laid out a town, including the whole of the old town of Detroit, a plan of which has heretofore been forwarded to the general government, and have commenced the survey of ten thousand acres<sup>186</sup> of public lands adjacent to said town, a plan of which, as soon as it is completed, shall be forwarded to the general government.

In ascertaining and adjusting claims to lots in the old town many difficulties presented themselves on account of the effects of the fire, the extending of the streets beyond their former limits (which were only about twelve or fourteen feet in width) involving private property, and the wants of a definite selection of ground to be reserved for the use of the military department; the object, however, is nearly accomplished, donation lots have been granted to all who have brought their claim within the purview of the said act of congress.

Respectfully submitted,

REUBEN ATTWATER,

May the 9th, 1809.

Acting Governor of Michigan.

JOHN GRIFFIN and

JAMES WITHERELL.

Detroit, November 7, 1815.

Sir: The act of congress of the 21st April, 1806, entitled "an act to provide for the adjustment of lands in the Town of Detroit and Territory of Michigan and for other purposes," authorizes the governor and judges of the said Territory to lay out a town, including the whole of the old Town of Detroit and ten thousand acres adjacent, excepting such parts as the president of the United States shall direct to be reserved for the use of the military department and to hear, adjust and determine all claims to lots therein and give deeds for the same. These powers have been executed; the military reservation has by the war department, been selected, and the provisions of the first section of the said act have been carried into effect. The second section provides that the land remaining of the said ten thousand acres, after satisfying claims provided for by the first section, shall be disposed of by the governor and judges aforesaid at their discretion, for the purpose of building a court house and jail in the Town of Detroit, a variety of causes arising from the nature of the trust and the situation of the country have till now prevented the application of the fund to the purposes designated by congress. It is our wish to proceed with as much expedition as possible to the disposition of the land, and the erection of the contemplated buildings. To do this it is necessary that the tract should be surveyed, and it appears proper that this should be done by a surveyor authorized by the general government and acting in conjunction with the governor and judges of this Territory, we have therefore the honour to request, that the surveyor general be directed to cause this tract to be surveyed agreeably to the instructions which the surveyor may receive from us. The most proper season for effecting the object is approaching, and by making the necessary arrangements immediately some of the surveyors now in the country, after completing their contracts, might accomplish the business with little expense to the public or inconvenience to themselves.

With great respect, we have the honour to be

General Land Office,

26th December, 1815.

Sirs: I have had the honour of receiving your letter of 7th ult., and in conformity with your request, I have instructed the surveyor general to cause to be surveyed the piece of land adjacent to Detroit, placed at your disposal by the act of 21 April, 1806.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

(Signed) JOSIAH MEIGS.

Their Honors the Judges, of Michigan Territory.

Surveyor General's Office,

Chillicothe, January 3rd, 1816.

Dear Sir: I have this day received from the commissioner of the general land office a letter (a copy of which is enclosed) in reference to the act of congress of the 21st March, 1806. I find that the lands embraced by the act are subjected to the entire control of the governor and judges of the Territory of Michigan, and as I presume they have applied to the general land office relative to this business, I have to request that you will afford me any information in your possession by which I may see any duties required of me by law, and how those duties are to be performed relative to this reservation and they shall be immediately attended to. I find in this office a general plat of claims in Michigan, an extract of which I also enclose, presuming those are the lands Mr. Meigs alludes to. I hope, therefore, as Mr. Meigs has not given me the information necessary, that it will be in your power to do so.

With great respect, I am,

Your obedient servant,

(Signed) EDWARD TIFFIN.<sup>193</sup>

His Excellency
Governor Cass,
Detroit.

General Land Office,

26th December, 1815.

Sir: The governor and judges of the Territory of Michigan are desirous that a tract of land adjacent to the Town of Detroit which was (by the act of 21st April, 1806) placed at their disposal should be surveyed this season. You will be pleased to direct one of your deputies to perform that service agreeably to the provision of said act.

I am, etc., etc.,

(Signed)
E. Tiffin,
Surveyor General,
Chillicothe.

JOSIAH MEIGS.

Detroit, January 26, 1816.

Dear Sir: I received by last mail your letter of the 3rd instant and have consulted the judges of the Territory upon the subject of it. Circumstances, public and private, which have occurred in the Territory have prevented the application of the fund given by the act of congress of 21st April, 1806, to the specified objects contemplated by the act. The situation of the country will now justify an immediate attention to the subject and we are very desirous of accomplishing it. The records and public papers of the Territory were destroyed or carried off by the British troops during their temporary occupation of the country. Among them were the maps and plans of survey made by Mr. Greely,<sup>194</sup> duplicates of which are in your office. Unless they can be replaced, the public and private inconvenience will be great. This will account to you for the present governor and judges being ignorant that the form and location of the ten thousand acres granted by the before mentioned act were determined. The object of our letter to the commissioner of the general land office was to procure a survey of this tract. As the United States had granted it and as we were ignorant of its limits being established we thought it correct that their proper officer should be consulted. Otherwise had we attempted its location, it might be said that one of the parties alone could not say what should be the form of the tract and how it should be situated. For upon these points the act is silent, requiring only that the land should be adjacent to the Town of Detroit. But your letter with the accompanying plat has removed this difficulty, as we find these questions are now at rest. You will therefore much oblige us by transmitting a correct plan of the adjacent country including these ten thousand acres, officially certified to be deposited among our records. Should you feel yourself justified in directing Mr. Wampler<sup>195</sup> or some other surveyor to run round this tract it would be very agreeable to us. Permanent corners should be established and field notes taken and preserved. I every day feel the loss of the plats, which I have mentioned. I should esteem it a particular favour if you could furnish me with copies of them. Indeed, I am at a loss to know how we shall get along without them. We are so anxious to proceed to the erection of the public buildings in the course of the next season, that we are induced to hope you will transmit an answer as soon as convenient.

With much respect, I am,

Your obedient servant.

Hon. Edward Tiffin,
Surveyor General.

Application was made by Abraham Wendell,<sup>214</sup> in behalf of Jacob G. Sanders, for a deed to lot number twenty-one, in section —.

Resolution presented by Judge Woodward—and after some alterations passed, as follows—viz.:

Resolved, by the governor and judges of the Territory of Michigan, acting under an act of the congress of the United States of America, entitled "An act for the adjustment of the titles of Land in the Town of Detroit and Territory of Michigan, and for other purposes." That the ground lying on Jefferson avenue, in the City of Detroit, adjoining the premises of Joseph Campau and bounded in front by Jefferson avenue, be divided into lots of forty-two and a half feet front on Jefferson Avenue and Woodbridge street, and two lots of forty feet front on Griswold Street, be sold at public auction on Tuesday next. One-fourth of the price to be paid in ten days after the sale and the remainder in three equal annual payments, and if any payment be delayed one year the lot to be forfeited and the monies paid returned, deducting twelve per centum per annum; and if any payment be delayed the purchaser shall pay twelve per cent, and if the whole payments are not made with the interest if any, on or before the day of the last payment, the lot shall be sold, and the amount returned to the first purchaser after deducting twelve per cent per annum for the fund. And a certificate shall be given to the purchaser by the Secretary stating these terms, and a deed shall not be issued till the payments are completed.

The following resolution was proposed to the Board by Judge Woodward, viz.:

Whereas the act of congress entitled "An act to provide for the adjustment of the titles of Land in the Town of Detroit and Territory of Michigan and for other purposes," requires certain acts by the governor and judges of the Territory of Michigan, or any three of them.

Resolved, that so much of the resolution of the —— day of —— last authorizing the governor and such of the Judges as may be in the Territory to confirm certain proceedings of the commissioners therein mentioned, be rescinded as would operate to authorize at any time the governor and one judge only to give such confirmation, and as would operate to prevent the three judges from giving such confirmation when the governor and secretary are absent, but such confirmation shall always be pursuant to the act of congress by the governor and judges or any three of them.

The question was taken, whereupon Augustus Brevoort Woodward and John Griffin, Judges, in the affirmative, and his Excellency, Lewis Cass, in the negative.

Ordered, that lots numbered twenty-seven, thirty, thirty-one, thirty-two, thirty-three, sixty-three, sixty-four, sixty-five, sixty-six, sixty-eight, sixty-nine, seventy, seventy-one, in section nine, be granted to the Corporation of the Catholick Church,<sup>215</sup> together with the use of the streets and alleys between them for a burying ground.

from Jessamine and Hickman creeks, which were then the most thickly populated parts of the territory embraced in Jessamine county, were in the habit of traveling between these two creeks. The road which then ran to Lexington ran substantially on the line of the turnpike and its traces are still distinctly visible to the eye at various points along the turnpike. This was true of the roads which ran from Nicholasville and what is known as Russell's tavern. In the location of the turnpike, very little of this old line was used. This was equally true of the road to Sulphur Well, but the roads crossed at that time north and south and east and west, exactly where Main street and Maincross street now intersect each other.

The inducing causes which led to the location were, first, four large springs, which were presumed then, to be never-failing. These all were within the limits of the twenty-five acres laid out into the town, and second, to the fact of the road passing from Lexington and Danville, and from East Hickman to Jessamine, crossing at right angles at the point. Little Jessamine, or East Jessamine, was then a stream of more importance than now. Rising about a mile above and fed by other streams along the line, it became quite a volume for a creek by the time it passed through the borders of the newly laid out village.

It was quite a while after the town was established before much trade centered within its limits. The people who first lived in the town were farmers in the immediate neighborhood.

There was no post-office in Nicholasville for several years after its location. The mails were carried on horseback between Lexington and Danville and Lancaster and Harrodsburg. Its location was not made without clashes of personal interest. Samuel H. Woodson, who was then a lawyer, desired to establish the town where the Shely place now stands, about one mile south of the present location, while Frederick Zimmerman sought to have the town established about three-quarters of a mile north, on top of the hill, just beyond the Duncan farm. It required several years to get the matter finally settled, and it was largely due to the great influence as well as the persistent efforts of Rev. John Metcalf that the town was laid out in its present location.

A large proportion of the settlers in Nicholasville were from the state of Virginia, and a few from North and South Carolina.

Nathaniel McLean, who married Catherine Blackford in Morris county, New Jersey, was a brother-in-law of Benjamin Blackford. McLean built the first log cabin in Nicholasville on the lot now owned by Mr. Burdine. Blackford himself had settled on the farm just north of Nicholasville, now owned by his grandson, Robert Duncan, in 1783.

Ordered, that fifty dollars be paid to Major Mack for extending the road from the point where his road terminated, to that where the road made by Colonel Leavenworth commences.

APPENDIX.

1. The foregoing is the journal kept by the governor and judges of the Territory of Michigan as a record of their proceedings when they sat as a board of commissioners to adjust the claims of those people who suffered in the fire of 1805, and to allot their donations. The portion beginning October 24, 1808, and ending with a letter dated January 26, 1816, is called Book No. 2. There were, altogether, five books. The entire record was kept in rough form. Book No. 2 seems to be the only one which was written up in full. Up to August, 1812, they are all in the handwriting of Joseph Watson, who was the secretary. Book No. 1 was called "Transactions of the Governor and Judges of the Territory of Michigan." It begins September 6, 1806, and was kept until June 2, 1807. On June 1, 1807, there was a motion that a committee be appointed to sit during the recess of the commissioners to adjust titles and act on donations. Judge Woodward was the committee appointed. From June 2, 1807, until October 24, 1808, there is a gap in the records, but from that date on, they run smoothly through September 27, 1809. Here the records jump from 1809 to 1815. By referring to the "Rough Minutes" it is found that nothing was done in connection with the granting of lots in the town until January 16, 1811, when the rough minutes again show transactions of the board. During the war of 1812 not much was done, but at the close of the war, when Cass became governor, the duties of the commissioners were again taken up and continued through 1836 to the end of Book No. 5.

2. "An act of congress of the United States of America, entitled, 'An act to provide for the adjustment of titles of land in the Town of Detroit and Territory of Michigan, and for other purposes.'

"Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and the House of Representatives of the United States of America, in congress assembled, that the governor and the judges of the Territory of Michigan shall be, and they or any three of them are hereby authorized to lay out a town, including the whole of the old Town of Detroit, and ten thousand acres adjacent, excepting such parts as the president of the United States shall direct to be reserved for the use of the military department, and shall hear, examine and finally adjust all claims to lots therein, and give deeds for the same. And to every person or the legal representative or representatives of every person, who not owing or professing allegiance to any foreign power, and being above the age of seventeen years, did, on the eleventh day of June, one thousand eight hundred and five, when the old town of Detroit was burned, own or inhabit a house in the same, there shall be granted by the governor and the judges aforesaid, or any three of them, and where they shall judge most proper, a lot, not exceeding the quantity of five thousand square feet.

“Section 2. And be it further enacted, that the land remaining of the said ten thousand acres, after satisfying claims provided for by the preceding section, shall be disposed of by the governor and the judges aforesaid, at their discretion, to the best advantage, who are hereby authorized to make deeds to purchasers thereof, and the proceeds of the land so disposed of shall be applied by the governor and the judges aforesaid, toward building a court house and jail in the Town of Detroit.

And the said governor and judges are required to make a report to congress, in writing, of their proceedings under this act.

Approved April 21, 1806.”

3. Gov. William Hull was born in Derby, Connecticut, June 24, 1753, and died in Newton, Massachusetts, November 29, 1825. He married Sarah, daughter of Abraham Fuller, a distinguished patriot who lived on a farm in Newton. Hull distinguished himself in the Revolution and was appointed governor of Michigan in 1805. He reached Detroit July 1, 1805, about three weeks after the fire, and immediately set about his duties. He brought his family with him. His only son, Abraham Fuller Hull, graduated from Harvard in law in 1805, and was admitted to the bar at Detroit, September 18, 1805. In 1811 he was appointed captain of the Ninth Infantry, U. S. A., and was killed at the battle of Lundy's Lane, July 25, 1814, aged 28 years. A daughter, Ann Binney Hull, married at Detroit, April 28, 1808, Capt. H. H. Hickman, whose family lived in Virginia. Besides these, there were six more daughters. In 1806 congress gave the governor and judges power to act as a board to replat the burned town and assign donations to the fire sufferers, as well as adjust titles to lands in the old town. Hull built for himself a large brick house at the corner of Jefferson Avenue and Randolph Street, afterwards known as the American House and used as a hotel. He was in command at Detroit during the War of 1812 and surrendered August 16, in that year. He was tried by court martial, was found guilty of cowardice and sentenced to death. His sentence was remitted in part, but he was dismissed from the army in disgrace. He was author of a pamphlet giving his reasons for surrender.

When the land board was first appointed it consisted of the governor and Judges Woodward, Bates and Griffin. The last named judge arrived at Detroit in September, 1806. Bates resigned late in the fall of that year and was succeeded by Judge James Witherell.

Frederick Bates was born June 23, 1777. He was the son of Thomas Fleming Bates, of Belmont, Goochland County, Virginia. He was apprenticed to the county clerk when 16 or 17 years of age and studied law while in that office. About the year 1796 he went to Detroit in the Quarter Master's Department of the Army of the Northwest Territory. He engaged in mercantile pursuits and was the first postmaster of Detroit, serving until July 29, 1805, when George Hoffman succeeded him. After serving a few months on the land board he went to St. Louis, where he was the first recorder of the board of land commissioners when the office was created. He was appointed secretary of the Territory of Missouri, May 7, 1807., and several times performed the duties of governor. In 1824 he was elected governor of the State of Missouri and filled that office but one short year, dying August 2, 1825, leaving a widow and four children. March 4, 1819, he married Nancy, daughter of Col. John S. Ball, of St. Louis County (See Annals of St. Louis in Territorial Days, by Billon, 1804-1821, pp. 226-277; also Michigan Pioneer Collection, volume 8, pp. 563-565).

Some time after Bates' resignation Judge James Witherell was appointed, and took his seat April 3, 1808.

James Witherell was born in Manchester, Massachusetts, July 16, 1759, and died at Detroit, January 9, 1838. He won distinction in the Revolution; was United States representative from Vermont to congress, and then came to Michigan as a judge. He served as judge for nearly 20 years, and was then appointed secretary of the Territory. One of his daughters was the wife of Thomas Palmer and the mother of the late Senator Thomas W. Palmer. One of his sons, Benjamin F. H. Witherell, was judge of the district and circuit courts.

Judge John Griffin, a native of Virginia, son of Cyrus Griffin, last president of the Continental congress, was probably born in 1779. He was a judge in the Territory of Indiana before the formation of Michigan Territory and was appointed judge in Michigan Territory in 1805. He left Detroit, February, 1824, and went to Philadelphia, where he died about 1840. While in Detroit he purchased land at Monroe of Mr. Knaggs and in 1836 and 1837 he had some correspondence with Judge William Woodbridge concerning it. At that time he was still single and was living at 49 Sanson Street, Philadelphia (See Manuscript, volume 130, pp. 40, 139, Burton Library.) He was constantly referred to as constitutionally inert, wanting in firmness and decision of character and disliking responsibility. He was, however, considered an upright judge and an honest man. His mother was Lady Christiana, daughter of the sixth Earl of Traquair. She died about December 1, 1807. Judge Griffin had two brothers, Cyrus, who died October 10, 1834, while a young man, and Dr. Samuel Stuart Griffin, who married Sally Lewis, of Gloucester. He also had two sisters, Mary, wife of her cousin, Maj. Thomas Griffin, and Louisa, wife of Col. Hugh Mercer, of Fredericksburg, youngest son of Gen. Hugh Mercer of the Revolution. (See Virginia Magazine of History, volume 1, pp. 255-6; Pennsylvania Magazine of History and Biography III., pp. 317, 318.)

4. The secretary of the territory was Col. Joseph Watson. He was a native of South Carolina and was educated in France. He came to Detroit as early as August 1, 1806. He was deputy collector, notary public, secretary to the governor and judges and city register. In 1810 he "padded" the census returns of Michigan Territory, for which he was tried and found guilty, September 30, 1811. On July 27, 1811, he married Sarah Myra Witherell, daughter of Judge James Witherell. On this occasion he assumed his whole name by which he was christened, Joseph Valentine Beaman Watson. He was made prisoner at Hull's surrender in 1812, but was paroled and went to Vermont. He was one of the witnesses at Hull's trial, giving favorable testimony as to his character. During the war he was second lieutenant of the 19th infantry and in 1813 was in the paymaster's department. In 1816 he settled in Washington, D. C., where he opened up a military and general agency department. He had two sons by his first wife Sarah; (1) Eugene Winslow, born July 18, 1814, who went into the navy in 1831 as a midshipman, resigned and came to Detroit in 1846, and upon the breaking out of the rebellion again entered service; (2) James Bolivar, born January 10, 1818, and baptized into the Roman Catholic Church at Detroit when 31 years old. He studied law and was admitted to the bar, but never practiced, having a large landed estate in Michigan to look after. He died at Detroit in December, 1849. Mrs. Sarah Watson died at Poultney, Vermont, March 22, 1818, while her husband was in Washington. It was always his desire to return to Detroit to live, where his father-in-law, Judge Witherell, was caring for his two children. In 1820, Joseph married Ann Coddington, whose sister was the wife of Samuel Johnson, of Philadelphia. In 1824 he took an active part in the celebrations in honor of Lafayette's visit to America. He died at Plattsburg, New York, October 7, 1836, leaving a curious will, which was contested by his relatives. (Witherell and Palmer papers, Burton Library; Detroit Gazette, 1818; Historical Register and Dictionary of Army of U. S., volume 1; Surrogate Court of New York.)

5. Dr. William Brown, born in Massachusetts, December 7, 1773, came to Detroit in the summer or fall of 1798, as resident physician. He immediately became a man of importance in the town, not only devoting much of his time to his practice, but also to civic affairs and business. In May 6, 1805, he was elected one of the trustees, but when the town was burned administration of affairs was turned over to the governor and judges. He lost heavily in the fire. In 1807 he was one of those who signed a petition asking for ground upon which to erect a Presbyterian church. He held 50 shares of stock in the new Bank of Detroit in 1806 and was one of its directors. He was appointed surgeon of the troops at Detroit in 1806 and held that position at the time Hull surrendered. He was among the citizens who were compelled by Proctor to leave the city in February, 1813, and was one of those who signed the protest against the sale of the lots on the commons, June 8, 1811. After the return of the American troops in 1813 he resumed his medical practice. He was humane and benevolent. For years he had taken care of the Indians in the vicinity of Detroit free of charge and in 1807 and 1818 at the Indian Treaties held by Hull and Cass, provision was made for the doctor in grants of land. These grants were not allowed by the United States government, and as late as 1829 Cass and others were making efforts in his behalf. In 1818 he was a stockholder in the Bank of Michigan. He was one of the early trustees of the university, and a member of the legislative council, 1823-1830. He was president of the medical society from 1820-1825. He lived for a while on the corner where the (Russell House) Pontchartrain stands. In early days this place was enclosed by a cedar picket fence. The house was small and painted yellow and adjoining it was a log cabin used as a school. Dr. Brown, at a later time, lived on the north side of Jefferson Avenue, between Bates and Randolph. He died June 27, 1838. (Tombstone Elmwood Cemetery; Detroit newspapers; Michigan Pioneer Collection; Manuscripts in Burton Library). He was never married, but having left a large estate, his numerous relatives recorded their names in the probate court as claimants for his property.

6. Judge Augustus Brevoort Woodward, son of John Woodward and grandson of John or Jan Woodward, was born in New York City. He lived in Rockbridge, Virginia, in 1795, and in Washington, D. C., for many years, owning a considerable part of the original plat of that place. He practiced law in Washington and was thought to be so able a jurist that in 1805, he was appointed judge of the territory of Michigan. He arrived at Detroit a few days before Governor Hull and immediately became a man of importance. He was responsible for the present plan of the city, its wide streets and open spaces in the heart of the city. He was one of the stockholders of the Bank of Detroit. During the war of 1812 his services for the people of the city in their dealings with the British were invaluable. He was eccentric and made many enemies, at the same time he made many staunch friends. In 1824 he left Detroit, was appointed judge of the territorial court of east Florida and died in 1827, in Tallahassee, still holding office. He never married and his brother John and sister Maria H. Pease were his heirs. Woodward at the time of his death was the owner of what is now known as Ypsilanti. He also owned 900 acres of land in the ten thousand acre tract on Woodward Avenue. Nearly all of this land is now in the City of Detroit. He proposed to locate a village on this land to be called Woodwardville, but the plan was never carried out, although a complete plat of it is in existence. (Sketch of Woodward by C. M. Burton, Michigan Pioneer Collection, volume 29, p. 638; Notes by C. M. B., Detroit Free Press, February 28, 1909 and 1914.)

7. Thomas Smith, a native of Wales, saw active service in the Revolution on the British side under Major Matthews and Colonel McGregor as lieutenant of militia. In 1779 his name appeared on the census roll of Detroit, where he set himself up as a merchant, and a little later when he tried being a tavern-keeper. He was employed in surveying and locating lands for discharged rangers. In 1788 he was acting deputy surveyor, clerk of the court of common pleas and a notary public. Understanding both French and English, he was valuable to the government as an interpreter. About this time he was appointed clerk of the land board, but on account of quarrels was dismissed. He assisted in assembling the Indians who resisted Wayne at the Battle of Fallen Timbers, but did not take any active part in the troubles. When the Americans took possession of Detroit he chose to remain a British subject and retired to live on the river bank at Petite Cote, below Sandwich. He subsequently laid claim to and obtained title to a large tract of land just below the City of Detroit on the American side of the river. After the fire at Detroit in 1805 he was employed in surveying and laying out a new town under the directions of the governor and judges. This plan was lost and no copy of it is known to exist, but in later years Mr. Smith wrote John R. Williams that the original plan of Detroit "of 1805 was approved by Mr. Jefferson, but was afterward rendered impracticable by Judge Woodward. * * * He caused streets to be made of various widths which altered the proportions of the diagram. The inside areas of sections which were for gardens and good walks, places of deposit in event of fires and circulation of air; he caused to be filled up with lots which proves he was the factotum at the Board, and obliged subsequent Surveyors to perform his whimsical schemes notwithstanding remonstrances. The Plan in its original form drew the attention of scientific persons, and from its novelty it is to be regretted it was not continued" (Manuscript, Volume 26, p. 138, Burton Library). He continued surveying for both the Americans and Canadians for some years. He married Angelique Charlotte Crette, daughter of a Loyalist, by whom he had four children: Thomas, baptized January 17, 1784, aged one month; Charles, baptised July 8, 1786; Ann, born April 1, 1788; Catharine, baptised July 25, 1790, aged one month. Ann married John McDonell, a citizen of Detroit, and lived on the northwest corner of Shelby and Fort Streets, where the postoffice now stands. Catharine married Charles Fortier and went to Amherstburg, where she died September 9, 1812, a year after her marriage. On June 12, 1821, Thomas Smith made a deed to John McDonell of all his lands in Detroit to be held in trust for the children of Ann Smith McDonell; they were John Smith, Catharine Ann, Charles Stuart, Donald Lundy and Alexander Dallas. John McDonell, Smith's son-in-law, after the war of 1812, attempted to make a trip to Malden. He was captured and accused of deserting the British, but was afterwards released. Major W. H. Puthuff was McDonell's brother-in-law. Thomas Smith died at Sandwich, U. C., March 3, 1833, aged 79 years. (See Genealogical Scrap Book 1, page 165, Burton Library; Notes by C. M. B.)

8. George Meldrum's name appears early in the records of Detroit where, on May 26, 1768, he voted for Philip Dejean as judge or justice at Detroit. In 1772 he purchased a lot of George Knaggs; at the time he was a trader at Detroit and Michilimackinac. In 1774 he committed some offense against Philip Dejean for which he made a public apology. From this time on Meldrum's name appears prominently in connection with affairs at Detroit. He was contractor to supply Gov. Patt. Sinclair when stationed at Michilimackinac. In 1788 he was appointed commissioner, by Lord Dorchester, over the District of Hesse. In 1796 he declared his intention of remaining a British citizen, but seems to have changed his mind for he was living in Detroit in 1817. For years he was in partnership with William Park in the firm of Meldrum & Park, merchants. At the time of the fire he was a heavy loser, as was also the firm. He was one of the five who signed the address of welcome upon Hull's arrival. He willingly relinquished his rights in the old town in order that the governor and judges could readjust the claims to lots in the new town. On October 9, 1815, when he was drawn to serve on grand jury (Vidal case) he was excused, being too infirm to act. He died April 9, 1817, at the age of 80 years. About 1782 Mr. Meldrum married Mary Catharine Angelique Chapoton, of Detroit. She died and was buried in the cemetery of the Church of Ste. Anne, March 4, 1815. Their children were:

Nicholas, born 1783, buried, Detroit, February 3, 1803.

Mary Ann Meldrum, born at Sandwich, U. C., September 2, 1786; married at Detroit by David Bacon, September 9, 1801, to Dr. William McDowell Scott, who died from the effects of the war of 1812. She married Melvin Dorr as her second husband. She was buried from Ste. Anne's Church, Detroit, August 1, 1825.

John Meldrum, born about 1788; married by civil magistrate in 1814 to Sarah Lytle. He died about 1825. Sarah was buried from Ste. Anne's Church, Detroit, March 16, 1839.

James Meldrum, born Detroit, 1792; married at Ste. Anne's, Detroit, February 20, 1821, Eleanor Boyer. He was buried at Anchorville, March 27, 1860.

William Meldrum, born Detroit, 1794; baptised February 22, 1817, and married February 26, 1816, to Genevieve Rivard, of Detroit. He died 1864 and she died August 28, the same year.

Mary Angelica Meldrum, born and died, 1795.

Felicity Meldrum, born September 6, 1798, was buried November 12, 1804.

David Meldrum, born 1800; married October 4, 1824, Julia Saucier, born Detroit October 11, 1805.

Mary Geneveva Meldrum, born Detroit, September 7, 1802; married Abraham Wendell, who was born 1791. She died 1845. She was also called Maria Ann Jane.

Robert Meldrum, born Detroit, 1804; married Mary Ann Moras.

George Meldrum owned what is known as the Meldrum farm, private claim 18, and other valuable lands. In August, 1806, an inventory was made of his property in the old town. He owned a lot on St. Joseph Street 48 by 57 feet bounded by the old Court House, east northeast side, and the Widow Provincial on the west southwest. Another lot in front of the Detroit Commons 73 feet wide was bounded in the front by the river, on the rear by the public highway along the commons, on the northeast by Henry Berthelet and southwest by the shipyard. On this was a dwelling house and a store house which escaped the fire and at the time of the inventory was being occupied as a church. Rev. Gabriel Richard made some inquiries about buying it for the use of the Catholic Church but did not consummate the deal. A third lot on St. Louis Street 45 by 63 feet was bounded west southwest by William Robison's [Robertson] lot, east northeast by the street leading to the Merchants' Wharf, and a fourth lot fronted on the Detroit River at the corner of the street running down to the Merchants' Wharf. Formerly this was occupied by Capt. John Fearson. (Rev. Christian Denissen Genealogies of Detroit Families, Manuscript, Burton Library; Michigan Pioneer Collections; Mss. in Burton Library, volume 829, page 78; Gravestone Records; Detroit Register, volume A.)

9. Henry Dearborn was Secretary of War, 1801-1809.

10. See Hull's plan of Detroit in 1809, showing Military Reserve.

11. Robert Smart was a jolly Scotch bachelor who came to Detroit at an early date. He was born at Kittle, Fife County, Scotland, and emigrated to the United States in 1792. At the time of Hull's surrender he was one of those who fearlessly protested against Proctor's brutal conduct. He carried on a mercantile business and had a store and house on the northeast corner of Woodward and Jefferson. He died October 28, 1839, aged 72 years. His heirs were a brother and sister at Kirceldy, Scotland, and his nephew, David, in Detroit, who married Mary Williams, a daughter of Gen. John R. Williams. (Scrap Brooks 4 and 5, Burton Library; Elmwood Cemetery records.)

12. Robert Fleming's name appears on the list of inhabitants of Detroit in 1806.

13. Enoch Page was sergeant-at-arms.

14. Solomon Sibley was born in Sutton, Massachusetts, October 7, 1769, and died in Detroit April 4, 1846. On October 31, 1802, he married Sarah Whipple Sproat, daughter of Col. Ebenezer Sproat, and Katharine, his wife. Sarah Whipple Sproat was born in Providence, Rhode Island, January 28, 1782, and died in Detroit January 22, 1851, aged 69 years. Mr. Sibley came to Detroit as early as 1798 with the intention of practicing law, having been admitted to the bar in Rhode Island in 1797. In 1799 he was elected member from Wayne County to the general assembly of the Northwest Territory. In 1806 he was chairman of the board of trustees of the town under the first city charter and was made mayor. He served as auditor of the Territory 1814-1817; delegate to congress in 1821-1823; judge of supreme court 1823-1837. He was one of the trustees and visitors of the University of Michigan in 1818. He lived on the northeast corner of Jefferson Avenue and Randolph Street. He and his wife Sarah Whipple Sproat had nine children.

(1) Ebenezer Sproat, born at Marietta, Ohio, 1803; died in Detroit August 13, 1884.

(2) Catharine Whipple, born February 27, 1809; died March 24, 1880; she married Charles C. Trowbridge.

(3) Henry Hastings, born at Detroit, February 20, 1811; died February, 1891. He was first governor of Wisconsin.

(4) Mary C. Sibley, born in 1813; died August 16, 1852, aged 39 years; married Charles S. Adams.

(5) Augusta Ann Sibley, born 1816; died March 2, 1841, aged 25 years; married James A. Armstrong.

(6) Alexander Hamilton, born October 17, 1817; died July 10, 1878.

(7) Frederick Baker, born September 23, 1824; died April 8, 1907, aged 82 years.

(8) Sarah Alexandrine Sibley, still living (1915).

(9) Catharine W., died in infancy.

15. William Macomb died April 16, 1796, leaving a wife, Sarah Dring Macomb and several children. Among them Anne, Catherine, William, Sarah, Jane, David B., and Eliza, were minors at the time of the destruction of Detroit by fire. John W., another son, was of age. William Macomb was born in Ireland in 1751 and came to Detroit with his father in 1772. His father, John, came to America in 1755 or '59, settled at Albany, New York, outliving his son William. An older son, Alexander, born at Belfast, Ireland, July 27, 1750, came to America with his father. They were engaged in trading business and William entered into partnership with them just before the Revolution. Alexander was one of the largest land owners in New York, owning "Macomb Purchase," which included lands in that state and all of the Thousand Islands on the American side. William became a large land owner in and about Detroit, where he possessed most of the islands in the Detroit River and a large tract of land known as the Martin farm, later the Macomb farm, and now the Cass farm. (Manuscript Genealogy of Macomb Family, Burton Library.)

16. James Henry, Esq., was the son of William Henry (born May 19, 1729; died December 15, 1786), and his wife, Ann Wood (born January 21, 1734, and died March 8, 1798), of Lancaster, Pa. He was one of a family of thirteen children, six of whom died in infancy. Of the remaining there were William, John Joseph (born November 4, 1756, and died April 15, 1811), James (died December 26, 1812), Matthew (died March 29, 1804), Abraham (died August 11, 1811), Benjamin West (born June 8, 1777, died December 28, 1806), and a sister, Betsey. William became a manufacturer, John Joseph was in the Revolution, and wrote "Account of Arnold's Campaign Against Quebec," etc., as a result of his experiences. After the war he studied law, was admitted to the bar in 1785, and in 1793 was appointed "president of the several courts of common pleas in the circuit consisting of the counties of Chester, Lancaster, York and Dauphin. He married the daughter of Col. Stephen Chambers, and upon his death left two sons, Dr. Stephen Chambers Henry, of Detroit; Dr. Julien Henry, of St. Louis, and six daughters, among them Ann Mary, who became the wife of Hon. Thomas Smith of Delaware Co., Pa. Matthew Henry became a trader and was located at Michilimackinac, where he died March 29, 1804. A cousin, William Henry, was located here at the same time. Abraham remained in Lancaster, Pa. Benjamin West was named after the artist whom his father had befriended as a young man. He studied art, probably under Gilbert Stuart, and when West was appointed successor to Sir Joshua Reynolds as president of the Royal Academy, he invited his namesake to visit him in London. At his death Benjamin left three small children, James, Anna Wood and Mary Henry. Little is known of the sister.

James, the subject of this sketch, was stolen by the Indians and brought to the Detroit River about 1793. In the fall of that year when the commissioners and Quakers were sent by the United States Government to treat with the British who still held Detroit, he was seen by the Quakers, who made a tour among the Indians. They described him as "a smart young man, a prisoner with the Blind Chief, near the mouth of the River Roosh (Rouge), twelve miles from Detroit. He is adopted, which renders his case difficult. They have put jewels in his nose and ears, and figured him like an Indian. He is desirous of returning to his relatives." (Michigan Pioneer Collection, Vol. XVII, page 590.) He was probably released in 1796, for at that time he became commission agent for the post. On August 21, 1798, Governor St. Clair appointed him justice of the peace (Manuscript, Vol. 912, page 103, Burton Library), and in 1800 gave him control over the granting of licenses for Indian trade. In 1799, when Sibley was elected to represent Wayne County in the general assembly of the Northwest Territory many of his votes were challenged. Among them was Henry's, and opposite his name is written "Lives at Grosse Ile. Lately liberated from the Indians; lives on the estates of the late Macomb." (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vol. 38, page 342.) Henry also ran a tannery and was for a time in partnership with William Russell selling saddles, harnesses, calashes, etc. This partnership was dissolved in 1809. Henry lost heavily in the fire of 1805, his property being inventoried at £2300. He was one of the most energetic in restoring order to the suffering townspeople. He was one of the three men chosen to handle the funds collected at Michilimackinac to aid the sufferers. He was president of the Detroit Bank in 1807. In 1810 his nephew, Stephen Chambers Henry, came to Detroit and was engaged in the tannery business with his uncle. After his uncle's death he carried on the business for four years. Henry held many important public offices. He was judge of the court of quarter sessions, 1802-1804; chairman of the first meeting of the board of trustees of the town in 1802; county commissioner under the Northwest Territory, 1804; served many times on the grand jury; was appointed by Hull, associate judge of the court of Huron and Detroit April 15, 1807; tax assessor in 1807. He never married and died December 26, 1812, at Detroit. The late D. Farrand Henry was the youngest son of his nephew, Dr. Stephen Chambers Henry. (See Lancaster Co. Historical Soc. 1896, page 69; 1907, page 303; 1912, page, 270; Sibley Manuscripts in Burton Library; Manuscript Vol. 108, pages 183-184, Burton Library.)

17. John Baldwin's name appears in the list of Detroit inhabitants in 1806 and in the petition of citizens of Detroit, April 24, 1807, for ground for a Presbyterian church. He was a merchant and bought goods of the agent of Sanders and Ogden, Albany. (Burton Library, Manuscripts.)

18. Col. James McCloskey, militia officer, name on the list of residents of Detroit in 1806; appointed superintendent of the first University building in Detroit, the building site of which is marked by a bronze tablet on the structure which replaced it on Bates Street, west side, about 100 feet north of Larned Street. He was active in politics; in 1821, he was endorsed for congress by the French of the Rouge, Ecorse and Raisin Rivers and by Judge Woodward. Solomon Sibley won the election. McCloskey was cashier of the second bank to be chartered in the state, the Bank of Michigan, established in 1818. John R. Williams was its president. In 1825 the affairs of the bank were examined and McCloskey was found to be $10,300 short in his accounts. He was charged with embezzlement but the bank compromised and accepted half the sum lost. He was early occupied in surveying, and in 1808 laid out the road from Detroit to the Miami. In 1825 he surveyed and laid out the road from Detroit to Chicago. He was administrator of the estates of Otis Fisher and Louis St. George. On September 11, 1815, he was married by James May, justice of the peace, to Susan Godfroy, a sister of Pierre Godfroy, and daughter of Jacques. Their daughter, Elizabeth, married Senator Isaac P. Christiancy, of Michigan. (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vol. 37, page 453; Manuscript in Burton Library; Hall-Godfroy Genealogy, page 96.)

19. After the fire of 1805 the government erected a stone building on the southwest corner of Randolph and Jefferson, the Council House. Here the courts were held. Before this building was completed, court was held at the houses of James May, John Dodemead and Gabriel Godfroy. On September 13, 1806, an act was passed to build an edifice for the use of the supreme court and "such other purposes as may from time to time be directed by law" in the center of the Circus, and on November 3, a committee, the governor, Judges Woodward and Griffin, was appointed to make arrangements. This would be at the intersection of Woodward and Adams Avenues. Not until 1815 was this act repealed, and in the meantime no building having been erected, the supreme court met at various houses and in the Council House. In 1823 McKinstry and Palmer contracted to build a court house. This was finally completed in 1828 and was located at the head of Griswold Street.

Public offenders were kept in the old blockhouse which stood within the limits of the newly platted Jefferson Avenue, or Main Street, where the Brush farm entered, and a short distance east of Randolph Street. James May was the marshal, and according to an agreement drawn up October 5, 1805, was to use this building until the end of 1806 unless sooner relinquished by the public, and then it was to become the property of the marshal "at the price of $250, of which $175 is considered already paid, and the balance due; if the public use the blockhouse for a jail during the year 1807 the whole is considered to be paid, and nothing to be charged for repairs; if the public use the blockhouse any further they are to pay Mr. May $75 a month and he is to charge nothing for repairs, and at that rate for any fractional part of a year." This building was used until the surrender of the city by Hull in 1812. It was then filled with soldiers and it was not until 1817 that an act was passed to contract for the building of a jail on the triangular piece of ground bounded by Gratiot Avenue, Farrar and Farmer Streets. The building was completed early in May, 1819. (C. M. B.)

20. Donation lots. After the fire of 1805 the United States government authorized the governor and judges to give to every person over seventeen years of age who was living in the town at the time of the fire and suffered thereby, a parcel of ground of 5000 square feet. It was nearly two years after the fire before the governor and judges hit upon a plan which was satisfactory to all concerned, and in the meantime the destitute citizens began building upon lands which they hoped to receive as donations. This led to many complications when the plan was finally drawn. The citizens were divided into three classes:

First. Those who were proprietors of lots in the old town before the fire.

Second. Tenants or householders.

Third. Inhabitants who were neither proprietors nor tenants. The inhabitants were numbered accordingly and drew their donation lots by ballot, according to their classes. (Record of Proceedings of the Governor and Judges' Original Manuscripts.)

21. At the time of the fire Peter Desnoyers estimated that the losses of Jacques Girardin were to the value of £400. Girar-din died at the age of 36, and was buried March 26, 1806, leaving a widow and several children. His widow settled his claims for herself and her children. She was Josette Drouillard and was born at Sandwich, U. C., October 23, 1773, daughter of Joseph and Mary Joseph Godfroy. Jacques and Josette were married January 27, 1790. She survived her husband by a few years, dying January 23, 1814. The family name was originally Girard. (Ste. Anne Church Records; C. Denissen's Genealogies, manuscript; Michigan Pioneer Collection, Vol. 1, page 347.)

22. Richard Smyth (Smith) came to Detroit about 1800, bringing with him his wife, Prudence Brady, and a son, John, who was born in Lexington, Ky. In 1803 he was marshal; in 1804, sheriff; in 1805, county treasurer, and appointed coroner, which office he refused to accept because the duties were performed by the marshal. He served as justice of the peace many times, beginning in 1807; was one of the trustees of the town in 1818, and held several other important offices. In 1805 he had a tavern near the corner of Woodward, west side and north of Woodbridge Street, adjacent to Dr. Scott's place. He kept this tavern until some time in 1824, when it became the Saginaw Hotel and was kept by Jesse Holly. (Farmer's History of Detroit and Michigan Vol. 1, page 480.) In September, 1805, he was made lieutenant of cavalry at Detroit; was appointed major in December, 1811; was colonel during the war of 1812, and in 1826 was appointed major general of militia. In 1807 he was also interested in the hatting business and had a young man, John McChesney, apprenticed to him. (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vol. 36, page 183.) Three children are recorded—John Smyth, born in Lexington, Ky., and married at Detroit, November 6, 1821, to Josette Godfroy, who was born in Detroit, December 15, 1803, daughter of Gabriel Godfroy and Theresa Bondy. After his death she became a nun and Superior of the Order of the Immaculate Heart of Mary (Hall-Godfroy Genealogy, page 96); Jane Smyth, who married Thomas Lyon of Michilimackinac, October 26, 1818, at Detroit (Genealogical Scrap Book III, page 187, Burton's Library); and Martha Smyth, who married Jeremiah V. R. Ten Eyck, May 14, 1819. The last years of his life were spent on Grosse Ile, where he died March 9, 1836. He was buried from Ste. Anne's Church and the senate adjourned to attend the funeral March 11. His wife, Prudence, received a donation lot, No. 33, section 7, on February 17, 1809. (Diary of Detroit, Manuscript, Burton Library, and Manuscript, Vol. 34, page 29.)

23. The Abbotts were among the wealthy people of Detroit and at the time of the fire lost heavily. Mrs. Abbott (Mary Barkle before her marriage) was the widow of James Abbott, who had died before July 25, 1800. His will was dated May 28, 1799. At the time of the fire she had six children, all of age as follows:

(1) Mary, born 1770, married December 10, 1789, to William Hand, sheriff and registrar of Essex, Kent and Lambton, who died February 20, 1836, at Sandwich, Ontario. Mary died December 22, 1860.

(2) Robert, born 1773 (or May, 1772), married July 24, 1798, Elizabeth Audrain, daughter of Peter Audrain, and died at Detroit, 1852.

(3) James (Judge Abbott), born 1774, married Sarah Whistler, daughter of Major Whistler, and died 1858.

(4) Samuel, born 1775, married Miss St. Croix, of St. Louis, Mo., and settled at Mackinac. She was living at Green Bay, Wisconsin, in 1888.

(5) Frances, born 1776, married Francois Baby, of Windsor, Ontario.

(6) Elizabeth, born 1777, married Hon. James Baby, of Sandwich, Ontario, and died 1812.

Mrs. Abbott died May 30, 1821, at Sandwich, Ont., where she was making her home with her daughter, Mrs. Hand. Her will was probated there June 4, 1821. (Memorial des Families Casgrain, Baby, Perrault, Appendices G; Records of Church of Assumption, Sandwich, Ont.; Manuscript, Vol. 34, page 48, Burton Library; Early marriage licenses of Detroit.)

24. Jean Legard put in a claim for a donation lot May 11, 1807. On May 18, 1807, the claim was taken up. At this time he said that he was an American citizen and had fought in the Revolution; that he took the oath of allegiance to the United States in South Carolina. He said that he signed a paper professing himself to be a British subject through a deception practiced upon him, being told that his family, who were on the way from Vermont to the Territory through Canada, would not be permitted to pass unless he signed the paper. He stated that he considered himself a citizen of the United States at the time of the fire, and that he was still desirous of being such. The board decided to give him a donation lot. Judge Griffin dissented. (See Records of the Governor and Judges, 1805-1836, page 78.) Legard had already built on lot 60, section 1, or lot 59, section 1 of the old plan. (See Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts.) He was later granted lot 57, section 3, and deed signed May 9, 1809.

25. Mrs. Sarah Sibley, wife of Solomon Sibley, being neither a proprietor nor a tenant, fell into the third class and drew lot 59, section 1, according to the said plan of the city first laid out by Governor Hull and Judge Woodward, upon their arrival after the fire. In the new plan, which was ordered to be drawn up September 8, 1806, this lot became 66, section 1. (See Hubbard and O'Flynn abstracts.)

26. Jean Baptist Durette was a baker whose father came to Detroit at an early date. Jean Baptiste was born in Quebec, December 25, 1762, and married at Detroit April 18, 1796, to Mary Ann Renaud, who was born at Detroit January 13, 1774, daughter of Louis Renaud and Mary Ann Casse dit St. Aubin. She died and was buried at Assumption Church, Greinerville, August 11, 1859. They had eight children: Jean Baptiste Durette, born at Detroit January 22, 1797; Archange, born at Detroit, August 4, 1798; Gabriel, born at Detroit, October 26, 1799; Theresa, born at Detroit, May 7, 1801; Francis Elias, born at Detroit, February 2, 1804; Mary Ann, born at Detroit, February 13, 1806; Victoria, born February and baptized March 20, 1809; Mary, born June 23, and baptized July 3, 1811. Jean Baptist had already built upon lot 11, section 4, when it was drawn as Matthew Donovan's donation lot. (See Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts, page 193.) Mr. Durette was one of those who signed the protest against selling the commons in 1811. In 1812 his name appears on the tax roll for highways for District 5. Governor Cass recommended his oldest son, Jean B., Jr., to West Point in 1820. In 1826 Jean Baptist was living in Hamtramck, and in 1836, his son Gabriel was living on the Fort Gratiot Road, 1½ miles from the city. (Denissen Genealogy, Manuscript; Newspapers, 1826 and 1836, and Manuscript in Burton Library.)

27. Matthew Donovan came to Detroit as early as 1794 and started a private school. Among his pupils and patrons were the Askins and Grants. His habits became such that for a time he lost many of his pupils. In 1798 he wrote a pathetic letter to John Askin, which evidently had the desired effect, for in 1804 he still had "Alick" Askin as a pupil. On June 24, 1805, he owned two lots in Detroit with building materials, stone and brick, upon each lot. His name appeared among the first class of doneés and he drew his lot December 31, 1806. About this time he decided to change his residence for Amherstburg, where one of his daughters was married and living. He made his will on July 8, 1809, and died before July 31, that year. He left a wife, Mary, and several daughters: Catharine Donovan (Mrs. Welsh in Ireland); Mary Fullerton Donovan, unmarried; Sarah Elliott, wife of Matthew Elliott; Elizabeth Nelson, wife of Jonathan Nelson; Margaret Innes, wife of Robert Innes. Mrs. Matthew Donovan, Matthew Elliott and Robert Innes were executors of the will. (Manuscript, Vol. 936, pages 169, 202, 221; Vol. 931, page 234; Vol. 13, pages 18, 19, 26, Burton Library; Michigan Pioneer Collections; Farmer's History of Detroit, etc., Vol. 1).

Sarah Donovan was the second wife of Matthew Elliott. She died at Amherstburg in March, 1869.

28. At this point the river front has been reclaimed from Woodbridge Street down. The Merchant's Wharf was located in the middle of the water front on what is now Woodbridge Street, between Griswold Street and Shelby Street.

29. Should be McCloskey. (See Note 18).

30. This was the survey of the park lots.

31. Elijah Brush came to Detroit from Bennington, Vermont, about 1798 after graduating from Dartmouth College. He immediately took a prominent position in the town, both in business and in military affairs. He was admitted to practice in the supreme court at its second session, 1805, was United States attorney, and had charge of many estates. He rose rapidly in the militia, attaining the rank of colonel; was treasurer of the Territory; appointed November 26, 1806, to succeed Bates and as such was treasurer of the Detroit Fund. He was one of the stockholders in Detroit's first bank. He signed the capitulation in 1812, was paroled soon after Hull's surrender and went to Ohio. Returning to Detroit after Proctor's evacuation, he died in a few months, December 14, 1813. By his marriage to Adelaide Askin, daughter of John Askin, of Sandwich, he obtained property known as the Brush farm. They were married February 17, 1802, and had four children: Edmund A., who married Elizabeth Cass Hunt; Charles R., who married Jane C. Forsyth; Alfred B., born 1808, died April 12, 1870, unmarried; Samantha (Cymethia), born November 21, 1813, married George S. Meredith, May 23, 1836, died January 17, 1842. (See Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vol. 37, pages 36, 134 and 450; Manuscript, Vol. 11, page 117; Farmer's History of Detroit and Michigan, Vol. 11, page 1031).

32. Detroit Fund was money which was raised from the sale of lots which were left after all donations were made, and also from the sale of the ten thousand acre tract, the same to be used to build the court house and jail. Mr. Brush had charge of the fund during his lifetime. He was succeeded by Robert Abbott, who served until January, 1830.

33. Henry Hudson was a scapegoat who spent much of his time languishing in the old block house or the jail. At the time of the fire he was in the trading business and was accused of stealing a barrel of coffee from Charles Curry and some silver plates. He managed to clear himself after spending a few days in confinement. In 1816 he was keeping a tavern and doing some trading. At this time he lived at Grosse Pointe. In 1824 he built the second dock in Detroit and was on the census roll in 1827. His wife was Mary Watson. He had a granddaughter, Mary Jane Terry. (Manuscript Volumes, Burton Library; Records of Supreme Court, 1805-1815).

34. John Connor was a shoemaker and cobbler who lived in Detroit before the fire and reported that he owned a lot 61x54, with building stone on it and valued at $192. He had already built upon lot No. 5, section 1, before November 1, 1806. It was drawn by Louis Lognon, who relinquished his claim, and was again drawn as a donation lot, this time by Gabriel Richard, who took $100 in lieu of the lot. He served in many offices, was constable of the court of quarter sessions in 1803, appointed marshal December 3, 1804, and again May 6, 1805. At the same time he was appointed clerk of the market and police officer. In 1806 he was appointed ensign of the company of light infantry in the Legionary corps within the bounds of the first regiment of militia in the Territory of Michigan. (Farmer's History of Detroit and Michigan; Sibley papers, Burton Library; Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts, pages 2, 3, 62).

35. Mrs. Urcelle Cadorette, Urcelle Begras dit Flauvel, was born at Detroit, November 1, 1759, and married Frances Cadoret at Detroit, August 7, 1773. He died and was buried at Detroit, September 26, 1801. Mrs. Cadorette was buried at Detroit, December 5, 1818. She was the mother of thirteen children.

36. John Gentle was born in Glasgow, Scotland, in 1762, emigrated to Montreal, Canada, in 1783, where he married Martha Roy, a French Canadian. In 1790 they came to Detroit, where Mr. Gentle kept a general store and sold liquors at the foot of Griswold Street. At the time of the fire his losses were estimated at £500. He applied for a donation lot and on September 26, 1807, applied for naturalization papers. His application to become a citizen was refused, which also prevented him from obtaining a donation. Judge Woodward gave the decision against Gentle and his resentment is seen in articles which he wrote for the Pittsburg Commonwealth and in the efforts he made to have Woodward and Hull removed. He very shortly moved to Sandwich and took part in the War of 1812 and the rebellion of 1837. In 1812 he was commissary in the British Militia of Essex, Second Regiment; in 1823 captain in the same regiment and held that office until his death. During the War of 1812 he resided in Little York (Toronto), but returned to Sandwich in 1815. He died at the age of 84 in the year 1846. (Burton Library, Scrap Book, 51, page 34; Portfolio G, Notes taken from conversation with John R. Gentle his grandson). His children were John Gentle, born at Detroit, March 24, 1803, married November 4, 1845, Eliza Faulkner; (2) William; (3) Adam; (4) Martha, married Jennings, a Methodist preacher in Toronto; (5) Thomas; and a sixth child, name unknown.

37. Mrs. Sarah Abbott was Sarah Whistler, daughter of Maj. John Whistler, Fort Dearborn, Illinois, and wife of Judge James Abbott. They were married in November, 1804, at Chicago, and returned to Detroit on horseback. She died October 4, 1874, aged eighty-eight years. (Scrap Book 5, page 45, Burton Library, an article written in Detroit News Tribune, entitled "Detroit in 1837"; see note 23).

38. John Connor, city marshal in 1805. Farmer does not mention another city marshal until 1817. William McD. Scott was United States marshal from 1807 to 1810.

39. Elijah Brush, attorney general.

40. The Detroit Bank was established by an act passed September 19, 1806. The capital stock was not to exceed one million of dollars, to be divided into ten thousand shares. Subscription books should be open the next day and closed in four days thereafter. The life of the bank was fixed at 101 years. The officers were to be a president and four directors. The petitioners for the incorporation of this bank were citizens from eastern states. William Flanagan, of Boston, was sent on to take charge of the bank, to superintend its organization and act as cashier. Judge Woodward was its first president. The company purchased two lots on the north side of Jefferson Avenue, west of Randolph Street and upon these lots erected a small building and opened the bank. Some opposition arose which quickly reached congress and a bill disapproving of the Bank Act was reported in the house of representatives where it passed late in February, 1807. On March 3, 1807, it was passed in the senate and the bank went out of existence. C. M. B.

41. Isaac Jones (see proceedings of board, January 28, 1809, this volume) was a merchant and hat maker in Detroit before the fire. His name appears among those who were here in 1806. The city was incorporated by an act of the governor and judges September 13, 1806, and Isaac Jones was elected to the second council. He was in Detroit as late as 1809, at which time he contracted bills for dyeing materials. (Farmer's History of Detroit and Michigan, Volume 1, page 134; Manuscripts in Burton Library).

42. David Stone came from Walpole, New Hampshire. He was in partnership with Shubael Conant & Company and did a good business until the surrender of Detroit on August 16, 1812. Later he was in partnership with Richard Hall Jones until about 1813, when Mr. Jones died. His name appears in the third class of Detroit citizens, showing that he was neither a proprietor nor a tenant at the time of the fire. (See Michigan Pioneer Collections, Volume 28, page 631; Supreme Court Case No. 482; Detroit, 1836 to 1854, page 209; Manuscripts in Burton Library).

43. Peter John Desnoyer (Denoyer), jeweler by trade, was a Frenchman born in the parish of St. Barthelmey, August 1, 1772. He came to America at the age of eighteen, expecting to settle upon lands which his father had purchased for him from the Sciota Land Company. Upon reaching this country he found that his purchases were worthless. He went to Gallipolis and very soon to Pittsburg. In company with Michael Dousman he followed Wayne's army and arrived in Detroit in June, 1796. In July of that year his services were called into requisition by the government as an armourer. He continued in this service until November, 1803, when he resumed his business of silversmith, manufacturing chiefly Indian silverware and trinkets, so highly valued by the savages. He formed a partnership with J. B. Piquette and was burned out in 1805. Mr. Desnoyer married at Detroit, July 30, 1798, Mary Louisa Gobeil, who was born at Detroit, August 1, 1782, daughter of Jean Francis Gobeil and Mary Rose Fortier. Desnoyer died at Detroit, June 4, 1846, and his wife December 14, 1857. Their children were:

(1) Peter, born April 21, 1800; married first, November 5, 1821, Caroline Josephine Leib; second, Ann Hunt Whipple, who was born April 5, 1813.

(2) Mary Louisa Rose, born November 12, 1801; married Louis Dequindre, November 26, 1817.

(3) Charles Chrysologus, born December 5, 1803; buried August 6, 1804.

(4) Emily, born at Assumption, Sandwich, Ontario, July 29, 1805; married George Leib; died at Detroit, May 12, 1838.

(5) Mary Magdelene, born at Detroit, May 17, 1807; buried February 23, 1808.

(6) Victoria, born at Detroit, February 12, 1809; married May 23, 1825, Henry Stephen Cole; buried at Detroit, January 13, 1863.

(7) Charles Robert, born at Detroit, July 7, 1811; married Elizabeth Knaggs, January 8, 1834; died August 16, 1846.

(8) Francis Xavier, born July 29, 1813; married Louise Baird and went to Green Bay, Wisconsin.

(9) Elizabeth, born August 1, 1815; married December 29, 1835, to James A. Van Dyke. He was buried May 8, 1855, and she, July 13, 1895.

(10) Ann Caroline, born October 19, 1818; buried December 23, 1822.

(11) Josephine Silvanic, born at Detroit, May 28, 1821; married September 6, 1847, to Henry Barnard.

(12) Mary Antoinette, born at Detroit, August 17, 1827, buried at Detroit, November 20, 1834.

(See Denissen's Genealogies Manuscript; Palmer's Early Days in Detroit).

44. Alice Wilkinson, wife of Dr. Joseph Wilkinson, Jr., and daughter of John Dodemead. (See Notes 98 and 127).

45. Jacob Nado entered the employ of James Henry on September 12, 1800, and gave him $10.00 of his money to keep for him. His name appears in the third class of citizens entitled to a donation lot. (Manuscript Ledger No. 533, Burton Library).

46. Mrs. Frerot, Genevieve Rancour, wife of John Francis Frerot, was born at Quebec, October 10, 1741, and was buried at Detroit, May 18, 1813. Her husband was a tenant in the old Town of Detroit and drew his donation lot among the second class citizens. (Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts; Denissen's Genealogies).

47. Richard Hall Jones was a merchant in Detroit. His name appears on an election roll in 1799, when he is described as having no property. During the War of 1812 he was very active and was one who signed the protest when Proctor ordered several prominent citizens to leave the city. His name appears to have been substituted for Ephraim Jones in the allotment of donations. He was in third class showing that he was neither a proprietor nor a tenant at the time of the fire. He died sometime between June and December, 1813. (Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts; Michigan Pioneer Collections; Manuscripts in Burton Library).

48. Mrs. Catharine Lafoy, Catharine Bourdeau before her marriage to Augustin Lafoy, drew her donation before December 31, 1806. (Ste. Anne Church Records; Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts).

49. Mrs. Catharine Metté (Catharine Peltier before her marriage to Theophilus Mette) had drawn lot 45, section 1, as her donation lot. This was erroneously entered by the secretary as lot 45, section 2, which was a part of the military reserve. She received this lot in lieu of the other (lot 45, section 2) upon withdrawing her claim. Theophilus Metté was in the second class, being a tenant but not a proprietor at the time of the fire. He appears as a printer on the title page of one of the large books printed on the press of Father Gabriel Richard in 1812. In 1817 he is mentioned as a book-binder and was probably the first in the city to engage in that business. (See note 175a; Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts; Denissen's Genealogies).

50. Pomp was a negro servant in the Abbott family. He was with them as late as 1811. His deed was made out to "Pompey Abbott."

51. Mrs. Jane Cook claimed this as her donation, but it was rejected and she received lot 38, section 6, upon which she built. The deed was executed February 17, 1809 (Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts). She was Jane Thorn, the daughter of a farmer on St. Clair River, before she became the wife of Abraham Cook. The Cooks kept a boarding house, patronized largely by army officers, and lost everything in the fire of 1805. (See Sketch of Abraham Cook, note 171).

52. John Bentley and his wife, Mary, were both entitled to donation lots; John as a tenant in second class, and Mrs. Bentley in the third class. Mr. Bentley's lot was situated just outside the old picket line and on the northwest corner of what is now the intersection of Larned and Griswold Streets. He built a large log cabin on this lot with a garden on the Larned Street side. Here he took his wife Mary and his daughter Sally, wife of Thomas Nolan (Knowland) and her two children. He applied for a license to keep a tavern December 27, 1808. On May 11, 1809, he sold this place to Bridget Belcher. His daughter, Mrs. Nolan, was also entitled to a donation lot and had made application at the same time as her father, November 3, 1806. She obtained lot 82, section 6, on the north side of Bates Street, between Farrar and Randolph Streets, fronting on the little park subsequently known as Deer Park, now occupied by the Metropolitan Police headquarters. Mrs. Nolan erected a dwelling house and her parents and children lived there for some time. Mr. Bentley died about 1816. The children of Thomas Nolan and Sarah Bentley were Sarah (Sally), who married John Scott and became the mother of James Scott, who was born December 20, 1831, and died March 5, 1910, leaving his fortune to the city for a memorial fountain; and Fanny, who married Abraham Noyes. In 1831 Mary Bentley, wife of John, purchased a lot on Franklin Street, built upon it and died there November 1, 1846. C. M. B.

53. Augustin Longdon (Langdon, Longan, Langan) was one of the early New Englanders to come to Detroit. After the fire he built on lot 51, section 2, the old plan of the town or lot 58, new plan. Hubbard and O'Flynn abstracts say that this order to make a deed for lot 59 was probably an error for 58. This lot was on the southwest corner of Woodward and Congress. It was low and marshy and Longdon had to fill it in before he could build upon it. This he had done by April 14, 1807. During the War of 1812 Mr. Longdon's house was struck by a shell and the family had a narrow escape (See Leake's History of Detroit, Volume 1, page 102). In a Detroit paper of March 31, 1820, Mr. Abbott advertises to sell a lot lately belonging to Augustin Longdon, on Woodward Avenue, 22,500 square feet, upon which were a small house, a stable, a large garden and fruit trees. Mary Longdon, the wife of Augustus, died September 21, 1824. He was one of those who, in 1807, signed a petition requesting a lot for a Presbyterian church. He signed his name "Augustin Longan." He was on the census roll in 1827. (Manuscript, Volume 450, page 146, Burton Library; Michigan Pioneer Collections, Volume 12; Original petition). Their children were: (1) John Coulter Langan, born in Detroit, December 8, 1801; (2) Patty, born in Detroit, February 15, 1804, died the following 30th of April; (3) Susanne, born in Detroit, May 18, 1805; (4) Bevelly Tailor, born in Detroit, May 8th, 1810; (5) Augustin Harrison, born Detroit, October 5, 1813. Beverlley Tailor (Taylor) Langdon married Jerusha and lived in Greenfield, Mich. Their children were: (1) Sylvester Larned Langdon, born in Greenfield, June 9, 1830; (2) Euphania Sutton, born February 6, 1832; (3) Susanna, born Greenfield, July 1st, 1834; (4) William Woodbridge, born at Greenfield, August 27, 1836; (5) Margaret Rebecca, born at Springwells, November 9, 1839. (From the Family Bible of Augustin Langan).

54. Archibald Horner was a cabinet-maker in Detroit. He was a heavy loser in the fire and was among the citizens who willingly consented to the redistribution of property by the governor and judges. He was, however, one of those who protested against the sale of the commons in 1811. He and his wife, Elizabeth, both drew donations. Mr. Horner drew lot 60, section 2, upon which he had already built. The deed was executed February 17, 1809, but not recorded until 1818. Mrs. Horner received lot 52, section 7, as her donation. Upon relinquishment of his lot in the old town Mr. Horner received lot 9, section 1, in the new town. This deed was executed April 26, 1809, and recorded in 1818. He also purchased park lots 28 and 29. Mr. and Mrs. Horner had two daughters: Sarah, who married Lewis Davenport on June 18, 1827, when the family was living at Brownstown, and Mariah, who died August 24, 1831, aged 20 years at the home of her sister, Mrs. Davenport. Sarah's daughter Anne E., married Dr. George B. Russel, whose son is George H. Russel president of the Peoples' State Bank of Detroit (in 1915). After Mr. Horner's death in 1812, Mrs. Horner married John Walker, and after his death, Elias Pattee, a Methodist preacher. Mrs. Robert Wagstaff was a half sister of Sarah Horner Davenport. (Hubbard and O'Flynn abstracts; Michigan Pioneer Collections; Sibley Manuscripts, Burton Library; Palmer's Early days in Detroit, page 550).

55. Charles Poupard dit Lafleur was born at Detroit, September 22, 1755, and on November 25, 1799, married there, Mary Felicity Campau, daughter of Simon Campau and Veronica Bourdeau. Poupard was a heavy loser in the fire, his losses being estimated at 400 pounds. Lot 7, in section 1, was the subject of conflicting claims of Dr. William Brown and Charles Poupard, but was finally deeded to Dr. Brown, and Poupard received lot 96, section 2, as his donation. Felicity, Mrs. Charles Poupard, died at Detroit, April 17, 1804, and in 1808 her mother, widow of Simon Campau, began a suit against Charles Poupard to recover her dower rights in certain property now in the limits of the city, which she had deeded to Poupard. (See Supreme Court Record, copy in Burton Library, pages 124, 183). Charles Poupard and his wife had three children: (1) Charles Francis, born at Detroit, October 9, 1800; (2) Simon Poupard, born at Detroit, April 30, 1802, married January 12, 1829, to Genevieve Beaubien, who was born at Detroit, November 21, 1804, daughter of Lambert Beaubien and Genevieve Campau; (3) Mary Magdalene, born April 15, buried April 21, 1804. (See Denissen's Genealogies, Manuscript).

56. John Kinzie was the son of John Mackenzie and his wife, Anne, widow of William Haliburton, of Quebec. John was universally known by the name of Kinzie. He was born December 23, 1763. His father died and his mother married in 1764, William Forsyth. They first moved to New York and then in 1768 to Detroit. John Kinzie ran away from home, learned the jeweler's trade and when quite a young man started out to support himself. His family finally discovered his whereabouts and he was taken to Detroit to live with his stepfather. He then turned his attention to trading with the Indians and established two trading posts, one at Sandusky and one at Maumee. His first wife was Margaret McKenzie, daughter of Isaac McKenzie, of Virginia. She and her younger sister, Elizabeth, had been stolen by the Indians in 1775, when only 10 years old and were found by John Kinzie and a friend of his. She had three children, James, William and Elizabeth; when her father learned of her safety he sought her out and she chose to leave Kinzie and take her children with her. John Kinzie then made his home in his step-father's family and prospered in trade. On March 24, 1798, he married Eleanor Lytle McKillip, daughter of Col. John Lytle, of Pennsylvania, and widow of a British officer, Capt. Daniel McKillip. In October, 1803, he took his family to Chicago, where he had a trading post and there he died January 6, 1828. He had lands in the old town of Detroit, which in the readjustment were covered by new property. He made claim for a donation and received lot 57, section 4. The deed was executed February 17, 1809. On October 28, 1822, Judge Woodward moved that measures be taken to recover for the use of the fund the value of lot 57, section 4, for which a deed heretofore improvidently issued to John Kenzie as a donation lot, and then the following entry was ordered made, "that on the 25th October, present, John Kinzie, did, in presence of the whole board distinctly admit that he acquired no ownership in lot 57, section 4, anterior to the month of December, A. D. 1805."

John Kinzie and Eleanor had the following children: John Harris, born October, 1803; Ellen Marion, born December 20, 1805; Marie, born September 28, 1807; Robert Allen, born February 8, 1810. Mrs. Kinzie had a daughter, Margaret, by her first marriage, who became the wife of Lieut. L. T. Helm. (See Life of John Kinzie, Chicago's Pioneer by Eleanor L. K. Gordon; Hubbard and O'Flynn abstracts).

57. Mrs. Catharine Provincial was the widow of Pierre Bourgeat dit Provincial, a blacksmith, of Detroit, who died and was buried October 7, 1796. At the time of the fire, Mrs. Provincial had five children; only two, James, born 1785, and Mary Ann, born 1787, were old enough to receive donation lots. The mother had already built upon lot No. 49, section 1, in the old plan, lot 41 in the new, but did not receive this as her donation. Her lot before the fire was on St. Joseph Street, 48 feet front by 57 feet deep. (Hubbard and O'Flynn's abstracts; Denissen's genealogies).

58. Mrs. Louis Peltier (Teresa Catharine Renaud) was born at Detroit, December 10, 1776. She married Louis Theophile Peltier at Detroit, July 19, 1802. He was the son of Jean Baptiste Peltier and was born April 7, 1775. They had thirteen children, only three of them born before the fire: (1) Teresa, born April 17, 1803, married (first) Charles Stephen Duchene, (second) James Randall; (2) Elizabeth, born April 6, 1804, married Jean Baptiste Deshetres; (3) Ann, born May 26, 1805; (4) Felicity, born June 20, 1807, married (first) Joseph Aubin, (second) Joseph Campau; (5) John Mary, born April 20, 1809; (6) Mary Ann, born May 22, 1810; (7) Julia, born February 18, 1812, was buried February 6, 1814; (8) Archange, born April 18, 1813, married Augustin Chapoton; (9) Louis, born November 19, 1814; (10) Peter, born April 24, 1816; (11) Julia, born December 19, 1817; (12) Justine, born December 24, 1819; (13) Francis, born February 19, 1821, married Mary Matilda Lauson.

Mr. Peltier's name fell into the second class, showing that he was only a tenant in the town. In 1803 he was keeper of the common jail or prison of the county. He died and was buried April 9, 1855. His wife was buried December 19, 1864. (See Denissen's Genealogies).

59. Ann Provincial. (See note 57).

60. Antoine Peltier, a cousin of Louis Peltier was the son of James Amable Peltier and Magdelene Levasseur, born at Assumption, February 13, 1774, and married at Detroit, November 5, 1800, to Monica Delisle. He was neither a proprietor nor a tenant in the old town. (Denissen's Genealogies; Original Manuscripts).

61. James Provincial, oldest child of Mrs. Catharine Provincial. (See note 57.)

62. Mary Anne Grefard, wife of Michel Monnette. Michel Monnette was in Detroit as early as 1799, when he bought a supply of beef in October and November and paid for it by "carting." He rented a small house on the commons of John Askin, for which he paid on October 30, 1801, one pound rent for one month. On March 27, 1806, he bound out his son Louis to Jean Baptist Piquet to learn the silversmith trade. The contract was

63. Probably Mrs. Agnes McLean, wife of David McLean, who died January 1, 1816, leaving his widow, Agnes, and the following children: Agnes, who married Jacob Smoke; Mary, who married Willard Hall; Prudence, the wife of John Young; Rachel, the wife of William Young; Elizabeth, the wife of John Murphy; Martha, who married a man named Roy and was a widow in 1840; John McLean left home about 1830 and nothing was heard of him afterwards; Solomon McLean. David McLean received lots 61 and 62, section 3, after the fire. A law-suit arose in connection with this property some years after his death (1840). (See Wayne County Chancery Court File 399).

64. Catherine McNiff was a daughter of Patrick McNiff, who figured quite prominently in the early days in Detroit. He was one of the first surveyors, and came to Detroit while the British were still there. His wife, Catherine McNiff, was born in 1753 and died December 17, 1838. Patrick died some time between 1801-1804. They had at least four children:

(1) Robert, who lived in Detroit at the time of the fire and whose house was the only one not destroyed. He was born 1784 and died April 16, 1844.

(2) Margaret, who married Porter Hanks, January 7, 1807. Lieutenant Hanks was in command at Mackinac at the time of its surrender to the British and Indians in 1812. He was paroled and came to Detroit, where he was tried by court martial. During the trial, August 15, 1812, a cannon ball penetrated the court room and killed Hanks. His wife died December 11, 1869, aged 83 years and 3 months. For many years she lived in a house on the north side of Jefferson Avenue, between Bates and Randolph.

(3) Eleanor married Lieut. Jonathan Eastman, October 16, 1808.

(4) Catherine was born in 1788. She lived in Detroit at the time of the fire and received her donation lot. She married Thomas Rowland, July 26, 1814. They had one son Lewis Cass Rowland, who died December 16, 1834, aged 8 years and 7 months. Thomas Rowland died August 13, 1849, aged 65 years. He came to Detroit from Pennsylvania after the War of 1812. Mrs. Rowland died May 20, 1853, aged 65 years. Thomas had a sister, Sarah Griffin, who lived in Detroit and died there August 15, 1846, aged 54 years. Col. Isaac Rowland, adjutant general of Michigan, an older son of Thomas Rowland by a former marriage, married Catherine Armistead Mason, sister of Gov. S. T. Mason, September 10, 1839. They had four children: Elizabeth M. Rowland, Catherine M. Rowland, Thomas Rowland and John Mason, "as baptised, was never called by the name of Rowland." They were all minors in 1851. Isaac was born in 1811 and died June 14, 1850, aged 39 years. C. M. B.

65. John Meldrum was son of George Meldrum and just old enough to receive a donation. (See Note 8.)

66. Mrs. Nowlan. (See Note 52.)

67. Isidore Peltier was an older brother of Louis Peltier, born in Detroit, January 13, 1773; married there to Sophia Salomon on October 8, 1798, and buried in Detroit March 28, 1815. Mr. Peltier's name fell into the third class, showing that he was neither a proprietor nor a tenant. (See Denissen's Genealogies; Original Manuscript).

68. Cecille and Renette were sisters and daughters of Louis Reneau and Mary Anne Casse dit St. Aubin. Cecille was born at Detroit, May 6, 1785, and married Francis Giffard, November 15, 1808. She was buried at Detroit July 29, 1837. Renette (Irene or Reine) was born at Detroit, March 18, 1783, married John B. Tremblay, August 3, 1818. She died of the cholera and was buried at St. Antoine, River Raisin, September 24, 1834. (See Denissen's Genealogies).

69. Mrs. Mary Robinson received her donation and made her mark upon the receipt, but there is no deed to her found on file. She was probably the same Mary Louise Hubert who married John Robinson at Montreal. They were married by an English minister and came to Detroit to live. They had two daughters, Victoria, born August 29, 1806, and Matilda, born July 1, 1808, both baptized by the Catholic priest of Detroit. John Robinson was classed among the men who were heads of families but not proprietors of land, in the second class. He rented a house in the old town and was therefore entitled to a donation lot. His wife was in the third class. They probably had other children who were not baptized in the Catholic Church. John died sometime in the late '20s and Hugh Robinson, Archibald Craig and Hugh R. Martin were trustees of his estate. (St. Anne Church Records; O'Flynn and Hubbard's abstracts; Original Manuscripts).

70. Mrs. Mary Ann Scott, wife of William McDowell Scott, daughter of George Meldrum. (See Note 8).

71. Mrs. Richard Smyth; Prudence Brady before marriage. (See Note 22).

72. Mrs. Maria Thibault (Marie Genevieve Deleil), wife of Joseph Thibault.

73. Louis Thibault, Jr., son of Louis Thibault, who died and was buried November 28, 1800, and of Marie Anne Mainville, who was buried July 19, 1802.

74. Joseph Voyer, Jr., was the son of Joseph Voyer and Catharine Charier. Joseph, Sr., died and was buried August 24, 1805, his wife dying a few days before him, August 16, 1805. He left a brother, Charles Voyer, of Quebec, and a sister, Marie Therese, who married ———— Ecuyer, devisees in his last will, together with Joseph Voyer, Jr., and William Smith, of Amherstburg. Charles Voyer also had a son, Joseph, who came to live in Detroit about the same time. He married Catharine Godfroy, August 29, 1810, and she was buried November 30, 1811, aged about 22 years. Their only child, Lucy, was buried December 3, 1811, aged 10 days. (Ste. Anne Church Records, Detroit; Tanguay; Records of Governor and Judges, page 111).

75. Mrs. Agnes Varnet (this name appears in the records Vernier, Valne, Valney, Vernet, Varnet, Vadney, Vadnait and Vadenai). She was the wife of Nicholas Varnier. (See Ste. Anne Church Records; Rough Minutes of Governor and Judges, No. 2A).

76. Mrs. Catharine Watson, wife of John Watson, a tailor, in Detroit. He went from this place about 1821, leaving children behind him. (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vol. 8, p. 556).

77. Mrs. Elizabeth or Betsy Welch, wife of Thomas Welch, a blacksmith who came to Detroit as early as 1799, and rented a place to carry on his trade on the Macomb plantation. (See Manuscript, Volumes 923, page 125, and 926, page 179, Burton Library.)

78. Margaret or Peggy Welch was the daughter of Thomas and Elizabeth Welch. She married Benjamin Packard. (Hubbard and O'Flynn abstracts).

79. William Watson was at this time unmarried, but soon took Victoria Fearson for his wife. They were married by a justice of the peace. William came from Lexington, Kentucky. Victoria was the daughter of John Fearson, who was born in England, November 11, 1753, emigrated to Salem, Massachusetts, and came to Detroit as early as 1793. While in Salem he was captain of a whaler and continued to follow the occupation of captain on the lakes. He died at Detroit June 11, 1835. He married a French lady from Canada, Maria Amable Lajumodiere, who was killed by lightning while sitting in front of her fireplace August 14, 1820. Captain Fearson had other daughters besides Victoria: Clemence Fearson, who married Joseph Andre dit Clark; Felicite, who married George Johnston, of Green Bay, Wisconsin; Julia, who married William Whistler, ensign in United States regulars, and son of Maj. John Whistler, a brother of Mrs. Sarah Abbott. William and Victoria had five children: (1) John, born January 23, 1808; (2) an unnamed child, buried April 19, 1809; (3) William, born November 2, 1811; (4) James, born September 2, 1814; (5) Marianna, born February 11, 1817, who married Cornelius O'Flynn, March 30, 1837, and was the mother of the late Cornelius J. O'Flynn. (See Bench and Bar of Detroit, by R. E. Ross; Ste. Anne Church Records; Data from C. J. O'Flynn; Manuscripts in Burton Library). William Watson was one of those who signed the protest against the conduct of Col. Henry Proctor in February, 1813. In 1815 he served on the jury that acquitted A. E. T. Vidal, arrested in Detroit for rioting. (Michigan Pioneer Collection, Volume 36).

80. There were two Willermys in Detroit at this time, Maurice (Morice, Morris) and Etienne. They were both in the list of property owners in Detroit in 1806. Etienne was in Detroit as early as 1804 and as late as 1820, when he was a witness at a wedding. He was one of the first to make application for a donation lot, making it through Gabriel Richard on October 3, 1806. In Hull's report of those persons who had drawn their donations before December 31, 1806, "Morice Willermys" appears to have drawn lot 55, section 6. When the plan of the town was changed this became lot 64. On August 16, 1819, Maurice Willermys, who had in the meantime made his home in Monroe County, petitioned for his donation lot. On March 23rd, 1821, he made another effort to get his donation lot and this time it is recorded as refused. (Ste. Anne Records; Record of the Governor and Judges as Commissioners; Original papers; Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts).

81. Mrs. Harvey (Sally Wilson), wife of John Harvey and sister of Thomas Wilson. She died after a long illness at Jeffersonville, Indiana, September 19, 1822.

82. John Harvey was born in Birmingham, England, about May 17, 1751. He married Mary Penrice in 1782 and had three daughters: Mary Penrice Harvey, christened October 10, 1783, married to Benjamin Pierce and died 1852; Ann Reynolds, christened in January, 1786, married to William Hart, July 14, 1805, and buried August 18, 1863; Mary Yorke, probably born in 1792, left England October 23, 1822, to join her father in Jeffersonville, Indiana, and resided with him until his death, December 5, 1825. Harvey is supposed to have left England in 1792, just before his youngest daughter was born. He was a peddler in New York City for a time and then came to Detroit as early as 1799. In 1801 he was established as a baker in the town of Detroit and had a bake shop located near the southeast corner of Shelby Street and Jefferson Avenue (or Ste. Anné and St. Honore Street). The fire of 1805 is supposed to have been started in his bake-shop. On September 24, 1807, he took the oath of allegiance becoming a citizen of the United States at Detroit. He was very active in municipal affairs; served on the grand jury several times. In September, 1809, he offered a room in his house free of cost for the use of the court. Sally Wilson appears in the records of the governor and judges as the wife of John Harvey. She received a donation lot as his wife on December 18, 1808, and lived with him until her death, September 19, 1822. In 1809 Harvey and his wife, Sally, sold part of their lands and in 1810 or 1811 started for England. When they reached New York Mrs. Harvey refused to cross the ocean and they returned west, settling at Jeffersonville, Indiana, where Harvey hoped that a projected canal would soon build up a great city. Here they were both affected by the climate and later died. After Mrs. Harvey's death, Maria Yorke Harvey came from England to live with her father. On May 18, 1825, she married Edwin Reeder, and on April 18, 1828, she died, leaving no children. John Harvey had died December 5, 1825, and Edwin Reeder was appointed, on July 13, 1826, administrator of his estate. Shortly after Mrs. Reeder's death he came to Detroit and lived upon the Harvey estate until his death. The property later became the subject of the famous Crane-Reeder suits. (See Manuscript, Burton Lib- rary, Volumes 96, page 96; 934, page 151; 954, page 44; 956, pages 90 and 223; C. M. Burton in Gateway, April, 1910, pages 38 and 39; also Michigan Reports, Vols. 21 and 22).

83. Peter Chatron (Chatran, Sharton) came to Detroit as early as 1802, when he had some bills for whiskey. In 1803 he was imprisoned for debt and begged for the privileges and benefits allowed debtors. He was a baker in 1806 and was probably baking for John Harvey, as he frequently ran bills for him as late as 1810. He received his donation lot and sold it to John R. Williams for $10.00 on April 7, 1816. His losses in the fire were inventoried at 31 pounds. While Harvey and his wife were in Jeffersonville, Harvey wrote Solomon Sibley on December 18, 1821, that many people were dying of "typhus"; that Chatron was with him and had suffered so with illness that he would never be able to do anything more. (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Volume 1, page 347; Manuscripts in Burton Library; Ste. Anne Church Records).

84. Mrs. Audrain, Margaret Moore, wife of Peter Audrain. They were married in the east, came to Detroit about 1796 and from that day until his death he held nearly all the important offices of a clerical nature in the town. Peter was born in France in 1725 and came to Pennsylvania during the American Revolution. He took the oath to support the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, becoming a citizen of the United States, October 2, 1781. He lived for a time in Pittsburg and later came to Detroit, where he was appointed prothonotary and judge of probate and nearly all the early records of the settlement are in his beautiful, clear handwriting. He was justice of peace, register of the land office, secretary of Michigan Territory and held other offices. Their children were: James H., born in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, December 29, 1781; Elizabeth, born in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, November 14, 1783; Maria Caroline, born in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, September 24, 1785; Peter Duponce, born in Pittsburg, November 26, 1787; Margaret A., born in Pittsburg, January 24, 1790; Francois, born in Pittsburg, November 10, 1791; Fany, born in Pittsburg, July 13, 1793; Peter, born in Pittsburg, April 13, 1795; St. Clair, born in Detroit, May 6, —.

Peter, Sr., was removed from office when 94 years old on account of incompetency and old age, in the year 1819. He died October 6, 1820. His daughter, Margaret, was married February 15, 1806, to George Hoffman, who came here as postmaster of Detroit, having been appointed July 29, 1805. Another daughter, Elizabeth Frances, on July 24, 1798, married Robert Abbott, son of James Abbott. (See Manuscript in Burton Library; Farmer's History of Detroit and Michigan; Campau Genealogy, Detroit Tribune, August 20, 1905; Gateway, March, 1910, page 36.)

85. The name John Anderson appears in old ledgers in Detroit as early as 1802, when he bought leather at James Henry's tannery. In 1805-6 John Askin mentions two John Andersons in his ledgers, one a trader in the Maumee region and the other a saddler in Detroit. The latter is undoubtedly the same young man whose name appears in the third class claimants for a donation lot after the fire, and in some of the records is marked "doubtful." However, he appears to have drawn lot 27, old plan, 28 new plan, section 8. A deed was ordered January 21, 1807, and was filed, unexecuted. Later on, December 19, 1808, another deed was ordered, but there is no record of this on file. (Hubbard and O'Flynn). It is quite likely that this is the same John Anderson who again appears in the records. He was born in the east (either Vermont or Connecticut) and attended the West Point Military Academy from October 9, 1806, to December 9, 1807, having received his appointment from Vermont. He served as second lieutenant of artillery in Detroit as early as June, 1809, as appears in an old account book of that year. In 1811 he purchased of William McDowell Scott, lots 52 and 54, section 3, the site of the Mariners' Church on Woodward Avenue. The same year he was appointed executor of the estate of Christopher Tuttle. He served in the War of 1812, at Detroit, and was made prisoner when Hull surrendered. He made an exploring trip into the northwestern and western country soon after, and in 1815-16 surveyed Lake Champlain. In 1817 he was engaged in constructing the military road from Detroit to the Maumee River. In 1818 he was in Washington, D. C., when it was reported that he had died. This was later denied and on August 21, 1818, he married Julia Ann Taylor, a Quakeress of that city. They returned to Detroit in September and in 1819 he surveyed Grosse Isle. They lived where the old Mariners Church now stands. Major Anderson took an interest in the affairs of the town and was very much liked. In 1821 he was elected vice-president of the Moral and Humane Society and in 1823 he bought a share in the Library of Detroit. In 1826 he was ordered to survey sites and fortifications on the New England coast, Hudson River, and Taunton and Weymouth Canal, Mass. During this absence from Detroit he was breveted lieutenant-colonel for faithful service, ten years in one grade. In 1833 they again returned to Detroit and Colonel Anderson made a survey of the shores of the northwestern lakes. He died September 14, 1834, at Detroit, Mich., aged 59 years. His widow, Julia Ann Taylor Anderson, died October 29, 1842, leaving her property in trust for a church, the Mariners' Church, at the death of her sister Charlotte. Thomas Anderson, of Pottsdam, St. Lawrence County, N. Y., and E. Rood, of Detroit, were among the heirs of John Anderson. (Detroit Courier, 1834; Cullum's Biographical Register of the United States Military Academy; Historical Register and Dictionary of the Army, 1789-1903; Wayne County Probate Files, No. 19; Original Manuscripts in the Burton Library).

86. Louis Benjamin drew lot 47 (old plan), 46 (new plan), section 6 and the deed was executed March 18, 1809. There is no conveyance on record nor on file nor is there any receipt by Benjamin on file. On January 20, 1846, Commissioner on claims recommended issuing of deed to them. February 1, 1846, a quit claim deed was executed to Louis Benjamin and his legal heirs and representatives in trust for rightful owners of the lot. (Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts, page 229).

87. There was a Jean Baptist Allard who was on the Brig Adams about this time. On January 22nd, 1789, a Jean Baptiste Allair, son of the defunct Pierre Allair and Therese Rochefort, married Magdelaine Tremble. (St. Anne Church Records; Manuscripts in the Burton Library).

88. Peregrin Bantrim (Banthan) was a private in Captain Thompson's company at Detroit from 1798-1800. He obtained the deed to his donation lot February 17, 1809. The lot passed by purchase into the hands of Maj. Joseph Farwell, who sold it for $5.00 (the price he paid Bantrim) to George McDougall, on February 13, 1812, who in turn sold it to Charles Jackson (Manuscript, Volume 425, page 13, Burton Library; Ledger 282, page 11, Burton Library).

89. Widow Isabella Cloutier, possibly Elizabeth, widow of Rene Cloutier, as the name Isabella and Elizabeth were confused in the records of the Cloutier family. (Ste. Anne Church Records, Detroit).

90. Dennis Campau was the youngest of the 12 children of James Campau and Catharine Menard. His sister, Mary Cecilia, born September 11, 1764, married first on May 7, 1781, Thomas Williams and became the mother of John R. Williams. Her second husband was James Lauson (Lozon), whom she married May 1, 1790. She died June 24, 1805. Another sister, Catherine, born June 13, 1779, married Louis Vessiere dit Laferte on June 16, 1800, and was buried October 17, 1854. Dennis Campau's brothers were James, Louis, Joseph, Toussaint, Nicolas Amable and Barnaby. The other children of James Campau died young. James was born February 7, 1766, married on November 26, 1789, to Susanne Cullierie dit Beaubien and died at Detroit, October 5, 1838. Louis was born July 26, 1767, married at Detroit, October 26, 1789, to Teresa Moran. About 1800 he settled on the Clinton River, where he had a general store. He attained much prominence in the locality in his interest in public affairs and was buried at Cottrellville, Michigan, May 13, 1835. Joseph was born February 25, 1769, and married May 18, 1808, to Adelaide DeQuindre. His descendants are among the Chapotons, Campaus and Palms of Detroit. Joseph died at Detroit, July 26, 1863. Toussaint was born October 28, 1771, and was buried March 3, 1810. He never married. Nicolas Amable was born October 20, 1773, never married and was buried September 23, 1811. Barnaby was born June 12, 1775; married first, May 18, 1808, Teresa Cicot; and next, February 26, 1821, Archange McDougall. He was the father of eleven children. By his second marriage he had Alexander Macomb Campau, who died April 1, 1908. Barnaby died October 8, 1845. Dennis Campau was born October 10, 1781; married Felicity de Joncaire dit Chabert May 8, 1812, who was buried February 16, 1814. Dennis committed suicide December 17, 1818, being partially deranged at the time. (See Denissen's Genealogies; Manuscript, C. M. Burton).

91. Mrs. Alice Connor, wife of John Connor. (See Note No. 34).

92. Mrs. Elizabeth Curry, wife of Charles Curry, formerly wife of Hugh Callahan, married Charles Curry, December 25, 1804, and after his death, which occurred before the fall of 1810, she married James Chittenden. In 1824 William Woodbridge wished to get her testimony for a case and he wrote a friend that Mrs. Chittenden was sick and infirm and living at the house of Capt. James Chittenden on Grosse Isle. (Manuscript, Volume 961, page 23, Burton Library).

93. As early as 1790 Peter Curry was a ship carpenter on the Detroit River and in 1792 was cutting timber on land on the Rouge River to build vessels for Meldrum and Park and the Northwest Company. Previous to July 1, 1796, he had made and enclosed a small garden on this same land and had erected sheds and huts for the use of men working on the vessels. He entered claim for this land as private claim 340 and it was granted. On May 23, 1810, the property was sold to David Beard. Peter was captain of the Schooner Tracy in 1806. He drew up his will June 3, 1810, witnessed by Richard H. Jones, John Bently and Augustin Langdon and died the same year. He left everything to Catherine Donaghey, formerly Catherine Miller. (See Note 209; American State Papers; Manuscripts in Burton Library; Records of the Supreme Court, 1805-1814; Wayne County Probate File 70).

94. Presque Coté was the son of Presque Coté and Magdelene Lafevre, who came to Detroit in the summer of 1771 and resided on St. Joseph Street. Presque, Sr., was a carpenter by trade and died before the fire. Presque, Jr., was born in Detroit, May 21, 1772, never married, and was buried in Detroit July 17, 1845. His sister, Magdeline Cote, received lot 42, section 6, as a donation lot. His mother, Mrs. Magdelene Cote, received as donation lot 61, section 2, on May 9, 1809, and upon extinguishing her claim in the old town received lot 101 in section 2 on May 5, 1807. She died and was buried at Detroit April 6, 1815. Presque Coté, the son, lived for many years in his house on Woodward Avenue between Louis Davenport's house and a vacant lot on the northwest corner of Larned Street. (Denissen's Genealogies; Palmer's Early Days in Detroit.) He bequeathed this lot to Ste. Anne's Church, which still owns it.

95. Bazile (Basil) Crequi, son of John Baptiste Crequi and Magdelene Duchene, was born on the farm in Grosse Pointe in 1781 and married at Detroit February 18, 1806 to Veronique Renaud, daughter of Louis Renaud and Mary Ann Case, dit St. Aubin. Veronique died and was buried at Detroit May 23,

1823, and Bazile married February 12, 1827, Cecilia Greffard, widow of Ambrose Tremblay. (Denissen's Genealogies.)

96. Elizabeth Cooper, formerly Elizabeth Crown, wife of Alexander Cooper, was the mother of David Cooper. David was born in Montreal, Canada, November 25, 1789. His father died when he was a young boy, and he and his mother came to Detroit in 1799. He was bound out to James Henry until he became of age and his mother went to Michilimackinac, where she married a second time. David married Lovicy Mack, daughter of Col. Stephen Mack, in 1820, and had five children, one of them being the Rev. David M. Cooper, of Detroit. David Cooper died in Detroit, a very wealthy man, July 27, 1876. He was buried in Elmwood Cemetery. (C. M. B.)

97. Joseph Côté was buried March 13, 1834, aged about 58 years. This date exactly corresponds with the death of one Antoine Côté given in Denissen's Genealogies, who was born on January 19, 1776. It is quite possible that Joseph was christened Antoine. Instances of this kind are continually coming to light among the old French families of Detroit. Joseph was confirmed by the Bishop of Quebec in Ste. Anne's church, Detroit, July 2, 1801, when 24 years old. His sister Madeleine was confirmed a few days earlier, aged 26 years. On August 16, 1801, Joseph was appointed on a committee to build the new Church of Ste. Anne. (See Ste. Anne Church Records, Denissen's Genealogies, Manuscripts.)

98. Jane Dodemead was a thrifty, energetic woman. Her husband, John Dodemead, is supposed to have come to Detroit either with Robert Rogers or very soon after the British took possession. He was married to Jane —— at Detroit, December 1, 1780. Their children were:

(1) Alice, born August 22, 1783; died in 1850. She became the wife of Dr. Joseph Wilkinson, Jr., and was living at Fort Edward, Ill., in 1835. (See notes 44 and 127.)

(2) James, born March 27, 1785; died in 1818.

(3) Elizabeth, born June 10, 1787; married Charles Jouett (government Indian agent.) She died in 1809, leaving a daughter, Jane H., who married Samuel Nothingham Sept. 4, 1823, and died in Christian County, Ky., in 1839. Mr. Jouett was the first Indian agent in Chicago. In 1812 he was appointed judge of Mercer County, Kentucky. In 1815 he returned to Chicago as Indian agent and remained there until 1818, when he resigned and accepted the appointment of judge of the United States courts for Arkansas. He died in 1834.

(4) Ann was born January 5, 1789, and died 1850. On January 25, 1807, she married Capt. Samuel Dyson, United States Army, commanding the garrison at Detroit. During the war of 1812, Captain Dyson was in command of Fort Washington, District of Columbia, and through a mistake in instructions abandoned his fort and permitted the English to take the City of Washington. He was tried by court martial and dismissed from the army November 17, 1814. He returned to live in Detroit, where he died, leaving his widow and two children, Samuel T. Dyson and Jane Dyson, in later years lovingly called "Aunt Jane Dyson." After Captain Dyson's death Ann married Charles Jackson and had one daughter, Ann, who married, first, Leonard Watkins, and second, Jonathan Thompson.

(5) John George, or John, Jr., was born July 10, 1791, and died, unmarried, in 1813.

(6) Isaac was born July 8, 1793, and died, unmarried, in 1818.

(7) Mary, born March 29, 1796, went to live with her sister, Catherine Varnum, in Chicago, where she died in the spring of 1820.

(8) David was born May 25, 1798, and died in 1836.

(9) Catharine was born April 6, 1800, and when 19 years old, on August 8, 1819, was married to Jacob B. Varnum, factor in the Indian Department at Chicago. In 1833, they were living in Petersburg, Virginia. (Manuscript, Vol. 425, page 6, Burton Library.)

(10) Robert was born April 18, 1803, and died in 1828.

John Dodemead, Sr., was extensively engaged in a mercantile business and at the time of the fire was one of the wealthiest citizens of the town. He lost everything in the destruction of the town and never seemed to recover from the shock. He was one of a committee of citizens who were requested by the governor and judges to draw up a classified list of the citizens of Detroit which would satisfy both the people and the government in distributing the donation lots. This list was handed in October 18, 1806. After the fire he built a large hotel or boarding house on Jefferson Avenue, where Shelby Street cuts through. It was a favorite resort of the soldiers, and court was frequently held there. After Mr. Dodemead's death in 1812 his wife continued to run the house. There is a tradition in the family that when Hull sought to surrender Detroit he snatched a table cloth from Jane Dodemead's table to use as a flag of truce. Mrs. Dodemead died August 15, 1822, in the sixty-fourth year of her age. (Detroit Gazette, August 16, 1822.) John Dodemead was very active in the affairs of the town, was coroner from 1797-1801; trustee of the town when Detroit was incorporated in 1802; judge of the Court of General Quarter Sessions in May, 1803 and 1804; inspector of customs at Detroit in 1802, and in 1804 had charge of enforcing the ordinance for protecting the city from disorder and fire. (Original Manuscripts Burton Library, Vol. 425; Scrap Books 4 and 5, Burton Library.)

99. Mrs. Dyson, Ann Dodemead, wife of Capt. Samuel Dyson. (See Note 98.)

100. There was a Durocher, volunteer soldier, in Detroit who rented a small house of Todd and McGill in 1800 and later of Askin. He may have been the Michel Durocher who drew this donation lot. The deed was executed February 17, 1809, and recorded February 12, 1810. On March 8, 1811, he sold his lot to Joseph Coté for $10.00. (Burton Library Ledgers 213, page 277; and 226, page 149; City Records.)

101. Donovan. (See Note 27.)

102. Victoria Fearson. (See Note on William Watson, No. 79.)

103. Charles Guoin, jr., son of Charles Francis Gouin and Susanne Boyer, was born at Detroit July 17, 1787, and was buried July 31, 1835. His father was a small boy during Pontiac's siege of Detroit and gave an account of it which is published in the Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vol. 8, pages 344-351. The Gouins were among the early settlers of Detroit. The grandfather of Charles, jr., Claude John Thomas Gouin was born at Ste. Anne de la Perade June 6, 1710, and married at Detroit June 13, 1742, Mary Josephine Cuillerier dit Beaubien. The Gouin farm is private claim 12 and lies east of Woodward Avenue between Russell and Riopelle. It was claimed by Charles, sr.. Charles, Jr. was living in the town at the time of the fire and therefore claimed a lot in the third class. (American State Papers, Land Claims; Denissen's Genealogies.)

104. Robert Glass came originally from River Raisin and, at the time he was in Detroit, was not married. He returned to River Raisin, where he was married April 11, 1810, by Israel Ruland, justice of the peace, to Lucinda Tibetts. During the war of 1812 they were driven from their home. Robert enlisted in the United States service for 18 months and Lucinda went to Wayne County, Ohio, where she resided in her brother-in-law's family. They again went to housekeeping but this time in Clinton County, Ohio, and remained there until Robert's death in December, 1815. He left a widow and one daughter in her fifth year. In August, 1819, Lucinda married Daniel Corliss in New York City. She made no effort to claim Glass's property in Detroit until January 22, 1826, when she petitioned for his donation lot or its equivalent. Henry S. Cole applied as trustee and obtained lot 67, section 8. (Original affidavit in City Hall, Detroit; Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts; Manuscripts Burton Library, Vol. 930, page 163; see note 164a.)

105. Angelique Godfroy was a daughter of Gabriel Jacques Godfroy and his wife, Marie Catherine Couture. She was born October 12, 1781, married February 9, 1807, to Francis Lacelle, and was buried at Detroit June 1, 1808, which makes it unlikely that she received a deed in her maiden name at the time this deed was ordered, December 1, 1808. In one of the original reports giving the list of donations confirmed and deeds ordered, the name appears "Archange Godfroy." It is more probable that it was Archange who received the lot. She was a younger sister of Angelique, born on March 14, 1786, and married March 1, 1810, to Joseph Bondy. She probably lived in Detroit until 1816 as her husband was buried there November 11 of that year. She died and was buried at St. Antoine, River Raisin, May 1, 1823. (See Denissen's Genealogies.)

106. This name is found in the records Gobe, Gobeil, Gobeille, Gobeye, Gobey. He was in Detroit as early as April 23, 1772, accompanied by his brother Joseph. Francis and his wife lived in the old town of Detroit, part of the time on St. Joseph Street and later on St. Louis Street. Francis was buried in Detroit March 17, 1818, and his wife May 7, 1819. Their children were:

(1) Mary Rose, born September 24, and buried October 5, 1775.

(2) Dominic, born June 27 and buried June 31, 1776.

(3) Mary Frances, born June 20 and buried June 28, 1777.

(4) Francis Xavier, born November 29, 1778, married August 1, 1818, Mary Louise Gagnier, who was born at Detroit May 6, 1782, widow of Gregory Belanger, daughter of Isaac Gagnier and Mary Louisa Valle. Francis died before 1827.

107a. Miss and Mrs. Hall were mulattos. (See Hull's original report.)

108. Jean Baptiste Picquet (Piquet), a silversmith, was born at Montreal in 1781, married at Assumption, Sandwich, Ontario, January 31, 1809, Eleanora Descomps dit Labadie, who was born at Assumption. The couple lived in Detroit, where their children were born. Jean Baptiste died and was buried at Detroit April 25, 1813. He was the son of Charles Amable Piquet and Josetta LeDuc. After his death his widow married Duncan Reid, who died November 30, 1819, and was buried December 2. He was 30 years old at the time of his death and was buried with Masonic honors. Their home at this time was on Jefferson Avenue. On August 28, 1825, Mrs. Reid was married by Rev. Gabriel Richard to Thomas C. Sheldon. Eleanor Labadie Sheldon died and was

Sheldon and Eleanor Ann Sheldon. (Diary of Detroit, Manuscripts in Burton Library; Denissen's Genealogies, Manuscripts; Genealogical Scrap Book, Vol. 3, page 195, Burton Library.)

109. Daniel Lasselier (Lazaliere) was a brother of William L. Lazaliere and a son of Jacob Lazaliere, who died in Morris County, New Jersey, in 1808. He was born in Richmond County, New York, and was several years older than his brother William. He must have been in Detroit before the fire as both he and his wife were classed in the second class, tenants in the town at the time of the fire. Daniel left Detroit and on November 5, 1822, made application for his donation lot, which he deeded to Abraham Lazaliere. Abraham deeded it to J. O. Howland. Abraham also owned lands in Washtenaw and Monroe Counties. In 1824 Daniel Lazaliere was living in Junius, Seneca County, New York. (Index to Deeds; Affidavit of William L. Lazaliere made May 22, 1824; Original Manuscripts in Detroit City Hall.)

110. George Smart, a brother of Robert Smart (See Note No. 11) had been a citizen of the United States since 1794. He served on a jury in Detroit in 1801 and was living in 1807, when he signed a petition requesting the governor and judges to grant a lot for a Presbyterian Church. He died before his brother Robert, who became the administrator of his estate. (See Transactions of Governor and Judges, February 25, 1809, this volume; Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts; Manuscripts in Burton Library.)

111. In Governor Hull's report of those who had drawn their donations before December 31, 1806, Zachariah Battles is designated as being "at Mr. Bentley's." The deed for this lot was made out to John Lockett on March 23, 1808, and a power of attorney from Luckett to Battles. (Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts.)

112. Charles F. Girardin was the father of Jacques Girardin (See Note 21) and outlived him at least a year or two. He was a master baker and kept a bake house in the '90s, supplying the troops and townspeople. He was born at Pointe Aux Trembles of Quebec, August 22, 1739. He married Mary Louisa Lecerf dit Lachasse at Montreal. She died before 1785 and Charles Francis came to Detroit where, on September 14, 1785, he married Mary Louisa Leclerc. He was one of the associate justices in the Court of Common Pleas when it was first established, and a member of the first board of trustees of Detroit, serving two terms, until 1803. His second wife was buried in Detroit October 24, 1788. (Stc. Anne Church Records; Denisson's Genealogies, Manuscripts.)

113. Thomas Carr died before March 2, 1809, and William McD. Scott was administrator of his estate.

114. Agnes Crequi, wife of Jean Baptiste Comparet, was born at Detroit, January 13, 1777, and married there August 17, 1795. She was buried at Detroit, January 7, 1809, and her heirs were Jean Baptiste (her husband), Frances and Margaret. They obtained the deed to this lot in 1822. (Denisson's Genealogies; Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts.)

On April 7, 1807, Dr. Brown applied for the deed but the board ordered that Louis Ducheneau attend the meeting and satisfy them of his being an American citizen. A year later the deed was ordered to be made out to Dr. Brown. There was a Louis Duchaineau who died at Detroit and was buried by the priest on December 15, 1807. He was about 60 years old and seems to have left no relations. (See Transactions of Governor and Judges, April 2, 1807; Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts; Stc. Anne Church Records.)

117. Pierre Galerno (Gallernau), a volunteer soldier in 1798-1799, became a wood merchant in 1800. He drew as his donation lot No. 48 old plan (47 new plan), section 6. It contained 6000 square feet and was subject to have 150 square feet taken from the southeast corner for an alley. (Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts; Ledger 213, page 83, and Ledger 197, year 1798-1799, Burton Library.)

118. Lydia Hullibert (Hallibert) was 17 years old at the time of the fire and an inmate of the family of Sol. Sibley. Her birthday was either the 18th or 28th of December. Mr. Sibley entered a petition for her donation lot. (See original petition and affidavit by Mrs. Sibley, City Hall, Detroit.)

119. George Welch (Wech) was a son of Bridget Belcher by her first husband. She was probably a widow at the time of the fire and had three children: George Welch, Catherine Welch (or Kittie Belcher, as she was sometimes called), and William Belcher. Mrs. Belcher died in 1815. Catharine was married three times; first, to a Mr. Seymour, who did not live in Detroit. After Seymour's death she returned and married Lieutenant Bailey, who was killed by the Indians. She next married Elijah Willets at Birmingham, Michigan, in 1817 or 1818. George Welch was about 18 years old when Detroit was destroyed by fire. Catharine was 16 or 17, and William 12 or 14. George became a merchant and on November 28, 1814, was married by Rev. Stephen Lindsley, chaplain U. S. A., to Jane Jemison. (C. M. B.)

120. Archibald Lyons was the son of George Lyons, an Englishman, who was born in 1753, and Elizabeth Chene, who were married at Detroit in 1782. George was a trader and he and his family lived for some time on Hog (Belle Isle) Island. He owned land in the town on the north side of Ste. Anne Street and a cross road opposite St. Honore Street, but at the time of the fire this had passed into other hands and his wife, married a second time, was living outside of the village. He also owned a lot on the south side of Ste. Anne Street, between St. Honore Street and MacDougall Alley. He died of pleurisy in December, 1794, on the Jones farm, West Detroit. George Lyons and his wife, Elizabeth, had five children: George, Archibald, Rose, Elizabeth and Catharine. Rose married Joseph Campau, January 11, 1814; Catharine married John B. Cochois, January 17, 1815; Elizabeth became a teacher in the Young Ladies Academy, established in Detroit in 1804 by Gabriel Richard. After the fire she and Angelique Campau taught school at Spring Hill, two miles southwest of Detroit, where the temporary Church of Ste. Anne was located. The school opened September 9, 1808. Archibald Leo Lyons was born at Detroit July 30, 1783. He was an early trapper and spent much time in the woods in Saginaw County. He married a half-breed, French and Indian woman, who was present at the treaty with the Saginaw Indians. His Indian name was Wa-she-ba-ga and his Indian wife's, "Catharine." He had one daughter by this marriage, Elizabeth, born July 15, 1811, and baptized at Detroit May 21, 1813. This child was brought up in the family of Rose Campau, her aunt. Elizabeth's Indian name was Mokitchenoqua. At the treaty of Saginaw a piece of land was set aside for her, and out of this grew a suit in the Chancery Court. (See Walker Chancery, page 123.) Elizabeth was married twice. On November 12, 1833, she married Bellamy Lachapelle, who died the following year, and on January 18, 1846, she married John Baptiste Sequin dit Laderoute, who died September 16, 1850. Elizabeth died and was buried July 13, 1871. Archibald Lyons married for his second wife, Elizabeth Lydia Roy. By this marriage he had five children: Archibald, born 1826, died in Libby Prison in 1863; Ann (Nancy) born 1828, married May 15, 1854, Henry William Deare; Catharine, born 1829; George Thomas, born 1831; Charles, born 1835.

Archibald was supposed to have been drowned near Bay City, Michigan, in 1837, and his body never recovered; however, when his daughter Elizabeth was married in 1833 he was spoken of as "defunct." Mrs. George Lyons, his mother, after the death of her husband, married George Knaggs in 1795. (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vol. 26, page 521; History of Saginaw County, 1881, page 162; Ste. Anne Church Records; Original Documents.)

121. Charles Curry was a merchant in Detroit as early as 1798, as at that time his right to vote was contested and he was described as only "lately arrived, has no property known." For a while he represented the Albany firm of Robison and Martin in Detroit and must have been related to both men, as is inferred from the personal and familiar way in which he writes his business letters to them. He soon became one of the prominent merchants of the town and acquired property. He was elected one of the trustees of the town in 1803 and served as county commissioner the same year. On December 25, 1804, he married Elizabeth Callahan, widow of Hugh Callahan, who also owned property in Detroit. At the time of the fire he was one of those who suffered and when the town was replatted obtained property to cover these losses. This property was lot 1, section 3, known as Curry's Corner, and from it all the measurements of the new plan were taken. It was located on the southwest corner of Woodward and Jefferson Avenues. On February 6, 1806, he was appointed quartermaster to the Legionary Corps of Michigan Militia. On September 30, 1807, he applied to become a citizen of the United States and was admitted. He died and his will was probated in September, 1810. His wife soon after married James Chittenden and is mentioned by J. R. Williams in a letter written in 1813 as Mrs. Chittenden, late Mrs. Curry. (See Note 92; Manuscripts Volumes in Burton Library; Supreme Court Records, 1805-1815; Farmer's History of Detroit and Michigan; Michigan Pioneer Collections.)

122. Hugh Callahan (Callaghan, Calligan) is described in 1798 as having "no freehold, is about purchasing a home." He is mentioned in that year as having driven a herd of branded cattle from Hamilton to Detroit, with the assistance of Peter Dillon. He took contracts for furnishing candles and pork for the government, sending them to Fort Wayne and the other stations in the northwest. He had a large contract on hand at the time of his death, which was between March 14 and May 13, 1801. His wife was administratrix of his estate. He owned land in the old town located on the southwest corner of St. Anne Street and McDougall Alley, which ran through to St. Louis Street. His estate, consisting of two lots, at the time of the fire was valued at $382. (See Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vol. 36; Manuscript Volumes Burton Library; Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts; Report on Sibley's Election, 1798.)

123. Hugh R. Martin, of New York State, was one of the land owners in Detroit before the fire. He was also a stockholder in the first Detroit Bank, owning five shares. In 1809 he was on a grand jury which was paneled to investigate into Governor Hull's official conduct. In 1807 he was made quartermaster with the rank of lieutenant in the Legionary Corps. He filed his petition for a donation lot November 25, 1806, requesting the lot adjoining Charles Curry's fronting on Main Street. He had already built a dwelling house and barn upon the lot. For a time Hugh Martin was in partnership with Curry, representing the firm of Robison and Martin, of Albany. He returned to New York State and served in the war of 1812, was appointed captain of the Thirteenth Infantry March 12, 1812, and major of the Twenty-second Infantry September 12, 1814. He was honorably discharged June 15, 1815. In 1821 and 1822, while residing in Schenectady, he wrote Sol. Sibley asking him to use his influence to get him the appointment of postmaster at that place. (Manuscripts in Burton Library; Petition for donation, City Hall; Ledgers in Burton Library.)

124. Louis Lognon (Lonion) was one of the residents of Detroit at the time of the fire, owning property. He drew as his donation, lot 1, section 3, which was also drawn by Charles Curry. He finally received lot 5, section 1. Louis was born in Quebec in 1765 and married in Detroit January 30, 1814, to Mary Louisa Drouillard. He died and was buried at Detroit, January 9, 1823, leaving four minors: Louis, Gilbert, Lucy and Moses. He was owner of the Lognon farm, land at Harrison and National Avenues in Detroit. His widow Mary married Gilbert Bagnall. (C. M. B.; Denissen's Genealogies; Ste. Anne Church Records.)

125. Mrs. Margaret McNeal (Neil) was the wife of Daniel McNeal. Before the fire the McNeals owned a lot on old St. Joseph Street, between the house of the Welch heirs and Francis Gobeil. The lot was purchased of James May on May 15, 1802. (Manuscript, Vol. 34, page 68, Burton Library.) At the time of the fire Daniel McNeal's losses were inventoried at $480, besides the value of his lot, which was $266. On June 7, 1807, he purchased of James May lot 64, section 4. He was among the men who petitioned the governor and judges for a lot for a Presbyterian Church in 1807 and signed the protest against the sale of the Detroit Commons in 1811. (Manuscript, Vol. 450, page 146; Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vol. 36.) Both Mr. and Mrs. McNeal were dead before 1817, at which time the sons, Daniel, a soldier in the United States Army, and John, a master Mason, of Quebec, P. Q., sold the Detroit property. In these deeds Mrs. McNeal is called "Catharine," but is undoubtedly the same as "Margaret." (Manuscript, Vol. 34, pages 62-64, Burton Library.)

126. Mrs. Julia Legard, wife of Jean Legard (see note 24), claimed this lot as built upon on December 1, 1808. Legard petitioned for his wife and himself for lots 57 and 58, section 3. He had previously petitioned on November 16, 1808, for lot 66, section 1. On the 13th of December, 1808, he petitioned to be allowed to locate his donation on lot 57, section 3, the same lot on which Mrs. Sarah Abbott claimed to have made improvements "for three years back and continued." (Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts.)

127. Dr. Joseph Wilkinson, jr., married Alice Dodemead, the oldest daughter of John Dodemead (see note 98). He was trustee of the town in 1805; coroner in 1804; collector of customs in 1805-1806; was appointed lieutenant in the First Regiment of Militia September 17, 1805, but declined and the position was filled by Benjamin Chittenden. In 1806 his customs accounts were questioned. He was imprisoned and released after an order of June 6, 1809. His bondsman was James Abbott. (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vol. 37; Farmer's History of Detroit and Michigan, Vol. 1.)

128. Francois Lapage came from the Parish of the Island of Perrault, diocese of Quebec. He married Catherine Mette on November 18, 1806. (Ste. Anne Church Records.)

129. Abner P. Ackley claimed this lot as built upon. On May 9, 1809, the deed was executed to William Scott, administrator of Ackley's estate. (See Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts.)

130. Catharine Godfroy was daughter of Gabriel Jacques Godfroy and Marie Catherine Couture. Her sisters, Angelique and Archange, were also entitled to donation lots. She was born in Detroit March 12, 1789, married August 29, 1810, to Joseph Voyer, and was buried at Detroit November 30, 1811. (See Denissen's Genealogies.)

131. This lot (104, section 3) was on the water's edge on the corner of Griswold Street. Peter Bezeau did not receive it because of a ruling of the board in September, 1806, that no donations should be granted on Main Street or between Main Street and the water, as these lots were generally required to adjust old claims. At that time Bezeau and others had already built upon these lots and their buildings and materials were ordered sold at auction. Peter was probably the oldest child of Joseph Bezcau and Mary Ann Plessis dit Belair, who were married at Montreal September 10, 1781, and seem to have come to Detroit about 1792. Joseph was a carpenter and in 1798 rented a house belonging to John Askin, near Mr. Campau's house. Joseph's wife died and was buried at Detroit November 3, 1803. There is no record of the burial of Joseph or Peter in Ste. Anne's. A young daughter, Archange, was buried October 1, 1808, at St. Antoine, River Raisin. The family may have gone there to live as the name is found there. (Denissen's Genealogies; Ledger 213, pages 72, 77, 319, Burton Library.)

132. Monique F. Labadie was daughter of Pierre Descomptes Labadie, who built the old Labadie house on the Labadie farm, now called the Porter farm. Her sisters, Josette, married Whitmore Knaggs and Margaret, married James May. Monique was born at Detroit June 2, 1787, and married Antoine Beau-bien on February 23, 1829. She taught school with Elizabeth Lyons and Elizabeth Williams (sister of John R. Williams) in a building which stood on the east side of Randolph Street between Larned and Congress Streets. Elizabeth Williams was among the earliest applicants for a donation lot for a girls' school, having applied on October 3, 1806, together with Angelique Campau. Monique died at Detroit, December 22, 1851, and was buried in Mt. Elliott Cemetery. (See Denissen's Genealogies; Knaggs' Genealogy, pages 15, 17, 26.)

133. Nancy Thornu Geel was the wife of Abraham Geel (Gill, McGill), a blacksmith in Detroit before the fire. Mr. Geel was one of those who signed the petition requesting a lot for a Presbyterian Church in 1807. In 1812 he was serving in the war with the rank of first lieutenant. He was sent to River Raisin that year on duty. He died some time before July 26, 1814. In 1833 the city made plans to open Larned Street across Randolph, cutting off some of the property held by his heirs. His daughter Caroline married Jefferson Morrison, February 17, 1836. (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vols. 8 and 26; Manuscripts in Burton Library; Common Council Proceedings for year 1833.)

134. William Allen was a tanner in Detroit as early as 1800. In 1802 his taxable property, a house and lot 50 feet front by 1 arpent in depth, was valued at 100 piasters. He was the son of John Allen and Marguerite Healy, of Maryland, Protestants. On September 21, 1801, he married at Detroit, Clair Rhode (Rode), a daughter of Girard Rhode and an Indian woman. Clair was baptized when 8 months old, on June 17, 1785. At the marriage, Allen promised to allow the children to be brought up in the Roman Catholic faith. Their children were all born in Detroit; Joseph, born March 23, 1803; Catherine, born March, 1805; Margaret, born October 22, 1807; Charles, born October 20, 1809. There was also at Detroit a William Allen, who married Elizabeth Fleming. They were both Protestants. Their daughter, Mary Allen, was born July 5, 1815, and baptized later in the month, neither parent being present. (St. Anne's Church Records; Dennisen's Genealogics).

135. Robert Abbott was a brother of Judge James Abbott and son of James and Mary Abbott (See Note 23). Robert was the third treasurer of the Territory of Michigan, and as such became the treasurer of the Detroit Fund from 1813-1830. He was the first auditor general of Michigan, 1836-1839; county commissioner, 1819. When the Town of Detroit was incorporated in 1802 he was assessor and in 1803 he was trustee. He lived some time in Mackinac, where his brother Samuel was interested in the fur trade. He died in Detroit in 1852.

136. Mrs. Cook (Jane Thorn). (See note on Abraham Cook, No. 171).

137. Isaac Day and his wife, Mary, came to Detroit sometime before the fire and seem to have been employed about the tannery of James Henry. On May 1, 1805, they were paid by him for seven months' services. Isaac was a sort of jack-of-all trades. He was keeper of the old block house on Jefferson Avenue between Brush and Randolph Streets, used as a jail. Part of this structure was used for a public weighing house and Day was weighmaster and also auctioneer. He had a son, Moses Day, well known in later days. Dr. Whiting said that Day was called "General" and that he was very precise and military looking. In 1818 Day was appointed chimney sweeper by the board of trustees. He was also at one time crier of the Territorial supreme court. He resided in the new town many years. (Scrap Book 3, page 100, notes by R. B. R., Burton Library; Ledger in Burton Library No. 247).

138. John Dilhet was a Sulpitian priest who came to America about 1796. In 1797 he was sent west with Gabriel Richard to succeed Levadoux in his ministry in and about Detroit. Dilhet went to the River Raisin, where he remained some time as a missionary priest and Richard to Detroit. In 1802 he seems to have spent some time in Detroit and in 1804 he came to Detroit in order to help Richard with his many duties. He also started a clerical school, which he continued up to the time of his departure and then left it in the hands of Richard. He left Detroit on October 14, 1805. The deed for his lot never seems to have been recorded. (See Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts; Dilhet's Manuscript Account of the Catholic Church in America, Burton Library; Ste. Anne's Church Records).

139. Thomas Coles' (Cowles) name was among the people in Detroit who were entitled to a donation lot, but neither proprietors nor tenants. At the time his donation was drawn he was at Mackinac and J. Anderson appeared as his attorney. From some accounts it would appear that he was a tinsmith. Later he settled in Monguagon where, in 1826, he died. Abraham C. Truax and John A. Rucker were commissioners of his estate. (Detroit Herald, June 9, 1826; Manuscripts in Burton Library.)

140. Albert Hill appears among the third class citizens. The word "dubious" follows his name in the records, questioning his right to a donation. However, he was allowed to draw a lot and did so December 31, 1806. In one record his name appears "Abraham" Hill.

141. Benjamin Chittenden claimed lot 38, section 8 (new plan), as built upon and by some error the deed was made out lot 35. He was not a proprietor nor the head of a family at the time of the fire. Judges Woodward and Bates placed him in fourth class. His name was omitted in the report handed in by Dodemead and others. Benjamin was a carpenter and had a cabinet shop next to Louis Lognon's bakery. He was in business in Detroit as early as 1802 and was still living here in 1822. (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Volume 31, page 582; Manuscripts in Burton Library).

142. Robert Monroe was in Detroit as early as 1803, when he was fined for keeping a "stove pipe," which at that time was an offence against the fire protection ordinance. He refused to pay his fine, but upon removing the "nuisance" was excused. He was agent of the public stores and attorney to settle the estate of John Francis Hamtramck. In 1805 he wrote Governor Harrison an account of the fire. He left Detroit in 1806, traveling to Washington, D. C., New York City and finally went to Kingston, Jamaica, where he visited a brother, a practicing lawyer, whom he had not seen for twelve years. He again returned to America. He died at Washington, D. C. His will was proved and allowed May 14, 1819. The executors named in the will were James Kincaid and John Murdock. Munroe left two sons, Robert and James, who were in Pennsylvania in 1827. (Sibley Papers; Farmers' History of Detroit and Michigan, Vol. 1, page 490).

143. John Skeiggs; this name appears in the records Skeggs, Skaggs, John S. Keggs.

146. Antoine Nevue dit Francoeur was born at Montreal in 1783 and married at Detroit, April 29, 1806, Geneveva Houde, who was born at Detroit, November 10, 1788, daughter of Michael Houde and Mary Lemay (Meny, according to Denisson). Geneveva died of cholera and was buried at Detroit, August 18, 1834. Between the 1st and 20th of August that year 189 persons died of cholera in Detroit. Antoine was buried at Detroit, June 30, 1850. He was a house carpenter and purchased lot 74, section 1, of Solomon Sibley, May 26, 1817. This lot had formerly been the property of William Flanagan who, upon his death, left it to his father, Barnabas, who in his turn deeded it to Sol. Sibley. (Denissen's genealogies; Abbott papers, Vol. 34, page 59, Burton Library; Ste. Anne Church Records).

147. Benjamin Woodworth, the famous hotel-keeper, came to Detroit from Scituate, Massachusetts, about 1806. He was a carpenter by trade and was soon engaged in building. He erected a house for himself on the northwest corner of Randolph and Woodbridge Streets in 1807 and subsequently enlarged it into the noted Steamboat Hotel. Here he lived until 1846, except during the years 1812-1813. On July 26, 1807, he was married by the justice of the peace, George McDougall, to Rachel Dicks. She came from Grosse Isle and died in 1856. They had two sons and two daughters. One of the sons was drowned at the foot of Randolph Street; the other, Samuel, helped his father for many years in the hotel. He finally bought a boat, of which he was the captain, and was killed in an explosion on the vessel. The daughters both married; one before 1830. The other, Ann, married Simon Brown, who became colonel of Michigan cavalry. The hotel burned down in 1848. (Palmer's Early Days in Detroit; Case of Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank vs. City of Detroit, File 294, Chancery).

148. Conrad Seek was stolen, with a younger brother, from their home in Kentucky, by a band of Indians from the frontier. Later he was purchased by a trader and taken to Montreal, where he learned the tailor's trade. His brother remained with the Indians until his death in 1826 or 7. Conrad was in Detroit some time before the fire and owned a lot on the south side of St. Louis Street, west of Campau Alley, very near the Merchants' Wharf, and valued at $123.50. He followed his trade as a tailor and inventoried his loss at the time of the fire at 260 pounds. He was appointed collector of the town in 1802 to fill the place vacated by William Smith. In 1804 he was appointed constable. On October 2, 1805, he was appointed lieutenant in the First Regiment. He was one of those who protested against the sale of the commons in 1811 and he signed the resolutions against the orders of General Proctor, February 1, 1813. He married Mary Morrison, and their children were: (1) Nicholas, who died at Fort Meigs, February 1826, aged 25 years; (2) Elizabeth, born 1805, married at Detroit, August 30, 1825, Charles Rousseau; Elizabeth was buried at Detroit, August 16, 1826; (3) Mary, born September 23, 1806, baptized November 7, 1807, married by civil magistrate to Martin Story on January 29, 1826; (4) James, born at Detroit, April 21, 1808; (5) Robert Helvin, born at Detroit, January 25, 1810; (6) Catherine, born at Detroit, March 9, 1812, buried there September 30, 1812; (7) a son born at St. Antoine, Raisin River, December 13, 1816, buried December 14, 1816. (See Denissen's Genealogies; Diary of Detroit, Volume 5, page 64; Manuscripts in Burton Library).

149. Oliver W. Miller was a merchant in Detroit in 1806. He came from Salt Springs Point, Onondaga County, New York.

He was married December 15, 1813, to Pelagie Maisonville, by Stephen Lindsley, chaplain, U. S. A. Oliver died and his will was probated December 20th, 1830. He left all of his property to his wife, Pelagie, and a son, William Warner Miller, born October 2, 1814. James Abbott and Elon Farnsworth were the executors of his will. (Manuscripts, Burton Library).

150. Michael Fox was a butcher in Detroit. Hugh R. Martin was his attorney in settling for his donation lot. (Manuscripts, Burton Library).

151. Israel Hunt was an early shoemaker in Detroit. On December 17, 1803, he was appointed inspector of the fire regulations. After the fire he went to New York City and had some correspondence with Solomon Sibley in settling his affairs and getting his donation lot. (Manuscripts, Burton Library).

152. Mrs. Richard Smyth.

153. Elizabeth McBride or Mrs. Betty McBryde.

154. Henry Bird built old Fort Lernoult in 1777, when the British held Detroit. He was a leader in the Indian incursions in the Ohio country in the revolution and was said to be the leader at the Massacre of Wyoming. He owned a large piece of land, including Congress Street, west of Griswold. He died on an expedition to Egypt in 1801 after serving 37 years in the army, leaving his America property to his son, Henry, and another son. He was survived by a widow and twelve children. On March 14, 1807, his heirs claimed a lot lying on the upper side of lot 73, in section 2, in the center of the section. The deed was confirmed February 17, 1809. (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Volumes 24 and 25; Notes by C. M. Burton; Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts).

155. The present Jefferson Avenue cut through the Brush farm.

156. Reuben Atwater, son of Reuben Atwater and his wife, Mary Russell, was born May 11, 1768, and lived for some time in Wallingford, Ct. He married first, Eliza Willard, and second Sarah, daughter of Gen. John Lamb and Catharine Jaudine. Reuben, Jr., was secretary of the Territory of Michigan from 1808-1814 under Gen. William Hull, and during the same period was collector of the port of Detroit. The census of the territory in 1810 was taken under his direction. In 1811-1812 he was acting governor. He also acted as land commissioner until February, 1811. Atwater Street was named in his honor. He died in February, 1831. He had two children, Catharine and Clinton Edward. (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Volume 37, page 449).

Part of his land fell in the street adjoining Solomon Sibley's ground. He died January 2, 1814, aged about 55 years, and was buried on the 4th of the month in the presence of Gabriel Richard and Etienne Roussel, his nephew. His sister, Pelagie Simare, married Joseph Roussel. She was a native of the parish of St. Francois, diocese of Quebec. (St. Anne Church Records; Transactions of the Governor and Judges).

158. Abijah Hull was probably a relative of Governor Hull, and was by him appointed his aide-de-camp with the rank of major in militia. He was also surveyor of the Territory of Michigan and justice of peace in the District of Michigan. He resigned August 2, 1808, and left the territory. (Michigan Pioneer Collections).

159. James May, a native of Birmingham, England, came to Detroit in 1778, aged 22 years. (Sheldon's History of Michigan gives a short sketch of him in the preface and his picture appears in the volume on page 364). He held many important positions, was the first chief justice of the court of common pleas, 1800-1807; marshal of the Territory; justice of peace; colonel of militia. On September 30, 1797, he married Margaret Labadie, who was 18 years old. He was a heavy loser in the fire, his losses being inventoried at $1,000. After the fire he collected the stones which composed chimneys of the old houses and built a house, which in 1836 was used as a hotel, the Mansion House, on Jefferson Avenue. He was a very large man, weighing 340 pounds. His eighth child, Augusta Caroline, married Alexander D. Frazer, of Detroit, when she was 15 years and 2 months. Mr. May died January 19, 1829, aged 73 years. (Gateway, November, 1909, page 41; Michigan Pioneer Collections, Volume 36, page 137).

160. Jane McClemens, later Jane Purdy.

161 Conrad Ten Eyck, of Dutch extraction, was born about 1782 and came to Detroit in 1801, when 19 years of age. His father was Abraham Ten Eyck, of Albany, New York, and his

Dr. Day was a Mason and master of Zion Lodge, No. 62, in 1817. The same year he subscribed $250 toward the University Fund. (Michigan Pioneer Collections; Annals of Fort Mackinac by Kelton, p. 46.)

227. Peter Van Avery (Every) was a mere boy when he volunteered in the war in 1812. He was made prisoner at Hull's surrender, taken to Montreal, and there paroled. He returned to Detroit and must have married about 1815, Amy ———. In 1816 he purchased property at the Grand Marais, where the waterworks are now located. The land had formerly been occupied by Charles Chovin and his wife, Louise. Van Avery added to the building already on the land and made it into a tavern. He also built a distillery. Here the Van Averys lived until 1837, when they went to Franklin, Oakland County, Mich., where Colonel Van Avery erected a tavern, a mill, distillery and potashery. He died December 23, 1859. (Oakland County History, 1877, pages 270 and 325.) Mrs. Van Avery came to Detroit in August, 1805, when about ten years old. She was living in 1872 and gave testimony in a law suit at that time. (See File 79, Superior Court, suit begun August 7, 1872; Palmer's Early Days in Detroit.)

He owned private claim 670 in Springwells. (Askin Papers, Burton Library.)

230. David C. McKinstry, a citizen of Detroit and Ypsilanti, Michigan, was engaged in various enterprises. He was the contractor, who with Thomas Palmer, erected the State Capitol at Detroit and received for it the larger part of the Ten Thousand Acre Tract. The capitol was in process of erection from 1823 to 1828. In the meantime he opened a hotel at Ypsilanti in 1826. He was extensively engaged in furnishing amusement for Detroit people. In 1837 he had a building which he called "The Circus" but which he leased to Warren P. Wing and Andrew Mack for a planing mill. He died at Ypsilanti in 1856, aged 78 years. (C. M. B.)

233. Peter Berthelet, a native of Savoy, came to Montreal, Canada, and then to Detroit, at an early date. He was interested in the fur trade with Astor. He also built himself a pottery at the mouth of the Savoyard River, near the intersection of West Jefferson Avenue and Third Street. He soon acquired a great deal of land along Randolph Street running down to the river. His son, Henry, was closely associated with him in business. Henry lived in a plain unpainted house on Atwater Street and was on the tax roll in 1802 when he declared that he owned two lots  $\frac{1}{2}$  arpent in front by  $\frac{1}{2}$  arpent in depth, two houses, one water mill and one horse. He was trustee of the town in 1804 and 1807. In 1819 he applied to build a wharf at the foot of Randolph. He seems to have failed in business about this time and transferred all his property to his father, who was probably his creditor. He did not build the wharf and in 1824 his father applied for the contract and carried out the project. One of the conditions was that he should build "a good and sufficient pump" at which all the people of Detroit should have the right to draw water free. The pump was also built and was used until May 19, 1835. Another condition attached to the building of the wharf was the giving of a city lot upon which he should build a market. Peter died in 1829 and was said to be one of the richest men in Canada. His will was probated in Montreal, January 22, 1830, and named his son, Antoine Oliver Berthelet as executor. Henry and his family were not mentioned as heirs. (Farmer's History of Detroit and Michigan; Will of Peter Berthelet, Detroit Free Press, May 10, 1885.) Henry owned private claims 269, 270 and 655, and was farming in 1821.

On October 16, 1804, he married at Assumption, Sandwich, Ontario, Susanne Drouillard, who was born there November 5, 1783, daughter of Francis Drouillard and Mary Ann Villers. Susan died and was buried at Detroit, January 31, 1813. Joseph married again at Detroit, July 29, 1813, Clemence Fearson. She was the daughter of Capt. John Fearson and was born November 3, 1794. She was buried at Ste. Anne's, Detroit, February 22, 1866. (Ste. Anne Church Records; Detroit Newspapers.)

He was engaged in business with Robert Rogers at Albany and followed him to the Northwest Territory during Pontiac's war. His first wife was an Indian woman by whom he had three children, John; Catherine, married, first, William Robertson, and second, Robert B. Hamilton; Madelaine married Dr. Richardson, a Scotch gentleman, an officer of Simcoe's well-known Rangers.

On June 21, 1773, Askin married for his second wife, Marie Archange Barthe, daughter of Charles Barthe and Therese Campau. Nine children were born:

Therese, born 1774, married Thomas McKee.

Alexander David, born 1791, was also in the war of 1812.

In 1796, when Detroit was surrendered to the Americans, those who wished to remain British subjects so declared themselves. Askin was among the number. He did not leave Detroit until 1802, and then built a home on the Canadian shore near modern Walkerville, which he called Strabane. Here he died in 1818. (Denissen's Genealogies; Wacousta; Mrs. Simcoe's Diary; Manuscripts in Burton Library.)

240. The Classical Academy was in the University Building, the cornerstone of which was laid September 24, 1817. The building was 24 by 50 feet and was located on the west side of Bates Street near Congress Street. Ste. Anne's Church was located in the center of the section and east of the Academy.

241. David Beard was a contracting agent for the army at Detroit as early as 1810. He also served in the war of 1812, Augustus Porter, Esq., of New York State, being the contractor. In 1814 Beard had removed to New York to live and gave testimony in Hull's trial. During his residence in Detroit he purchased Peter Curry's farm, private claim 340. (See Memoir of Hull, page 77; Manuscripts in Burton Library.)

242. The "Vincent lot" took its name from James Vincent, one of the early settlers of Detroit, who elected to become a British subject after the revolution. He lived on the American side for many years and ran a ferry between Detroit and the Canadian shore, having applied for a permit in 1800. At the time of the fire his property was inventoried at $144. He drew lot 64, section 4, old plan as his donation lot, which was also drawn by Conrad Seek. In the list of townspeople made out by Dodemead and his committee, Vincent's name is in the first class but is marked "dubious, inquire of Mr. Henry." (Manuscripts in Burton Library; Diary of Detroit, Manuscript.)

244. This was probably Toussaint Anthony Adhemar dit St. Martin, who was born in Montreal and came to Detroit as early as August 24, 1769. He settled there about 1772, trading with the Miami Indians and practicing medicine among them. Part of the time he resided with his family in the Indian village. He married Geneveva Blondeau and had eight children. (Denissen's Genealogies.)

245. Andrew G. Whitney was one of the first stockholders in the Bank of Michigan in 1818. He held many offices in the town, being secretary of the land board from 1822 to 1824, city registrar 1822 to 1823, judge advocate in 1823, chairman of the board of trustees of the town, secretary of the legislative body 1823-1825, United States attorney 1824-1827, and appointed to the legislature from the first district early in 1826. He was also director of the Sunday school in 1819. On April 3, 1820, he married Ann Eliza Tallman, daughter of John Tallman, at one time mayor of Hudson, New York. Her sister was Mrs. John L. Whiting. Mr. Whitney died October 5, 1826, aged 39. He was much loved and the Rev. Mr. Cadle, of St. Paul's Church, wrote a poem in memory of him. (Michigan Herald, October 11, 1826; Farmer's History of Detroit and Michigan.)

246. The Ridley lot fronted on Ste. Anne Street of old Detroit at the corner of St. Peter Street and was bounded on the rear by St. James Street. It was across St. Peter Street from the Ste. Anne Catholic Church and not far from old Pontiac gate. It was owned by Edward Ridley and James Bennett.

247. From this it would appear that Virginia Street was that street which ran from the present (1915) Farmer Street to Randolph Street on the northwest side of the central police station, which is today called Bates Street. At that time (1818) Bates Street continued north on the present Farmer Street. There was another street called Virginia in section 1, but this was converted into building lots when Congress Street was extended east of Bates. (See Hubbard and O'Flynn Abstracts.)

248. In 1820 Harvey Williams had a blacksmith shop where the Russell House stood and where the Pontchartrain stands (1915). His dwelling house stood on the same lot east of his shop. The year before this he worked in a blacksmith shop owned by Colonel Mack. In 1832 he built the first sawmill in Detroit on land at the foot of Hastings Street, purchased from Antoine Beaubien by Josiah R. Dorr, C. C. Trowbridge and E. A. Brush, who were interested in the project. In 1847 he was residing at the mouth of the Kawkawlin River in Saginaw Valley with his wife and her two nieces. Mr. Williams died at Saginaw in 1883. (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vol. 18, page 440; Vol. 28, page 596.)

249. In 1817 John P. Sheldon and Ebenezer A. Reed started the Gazette, the first number appearing July 25. Sheldon was a native of New York and was born in 1792. He was a practical printer in Ogdensburg in 1812 when he enlisted in the New York militia. During the war he gained the rank of major. He was a journeyman printer with Thurlow Weed at Utica for some time and then established the first newspaper published in Rochester. Early in 1817 he came to Detroit and established the Gazette. Ebenezer A. Reed was originally associated with Sheldon in the publication of the paper but this partnership soon ceased. Sheldon remained editor and proprietor for the next thirteen years. He was editor of the Free Press when it was first established. In 1833 he was appointed assistant superintendent of the lead mines on the Upper Mississippi River and registrar of the United States land offices at Mineral Point, Wisconsin. Between 1840 and 1850 he was a clerk in one of the departments at Washington, and in 1850 was appointed clerk of the committee on pensions of the United States senate. He resigned in 1861 and removed to Winfield, Illinois, where he spent his last years with a daughter. He died January 19, 1871, aged 79 years. Thomas C. Sheldon was his brother and Sheldon McKnight, a nephew. (Scrap Book 2., page 29, Burton Library.)

250. Jonathan Eastman, husband of Eleanor McNiff. (See Note 64.)

251. (See Note 216.)

252. Maurice Willermy. (See Note 80.)

253. According to his petition for a donation lot drawn up in 1822, Rufus Hatch was a resident of Detroit at the time of the fire, 1805, at which time he claims to have been seventeen years old. He received lot 4, section 7. He seems to have lived in a number of places. In 1817 he was a justice of the peace for the District of Huron, in 1818 for the County of Macomb. In 1819 he was one of the committee of citizens who endorsed Woodbridge for delegate to congress. The same year he took a contract to furnish cord wood for the use of the steamboat Walk-in-the-Water. He was a Protestant and had a pew in the Protestant church which he offered for sale in 1821. In 1824 he removed to Oakland County with the expectation of receiving the appointment of county clerk. Disappointed in this respect, he left the place and may have returned to Detroit. When it was decided to build a lighthouse at Fort Gratiot he applied for the position of keeper, and was appointed. He was at Fort Gratiot when the lighthouse was completed and had charge of it from August 8, 1825, until his death in September, 1825. He was succeeded by George McDougall. He was styled "major" and had formerly been quartermaster of the U. S. A. His wife was Harriet M. ———. (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vol. 36, pages 470, 474 and 475; Detroit Gazette, 1825; Original Manuscripts.)

Hervey Parke was one of the party on this occasion. Horatio finally settled near Pontiac. (Michigan Pioneer Collections.)

255. Robert Forsyth, son of William Forsyth, was born at Grosse Pointe May 10, 1774. When the Americans finally took Detroit in 1796, Forsyth elected to remain a British subject, but he evidently changed his mind as he lived on at Detroit for many years, owning property and having interests there. On July 14, 1801, he obtained a grant of land in Sandwich. In 1808 he was engaged in business in Chicago with his half-brother, John Kinzie. On April 20, 1809, he was appointed vice-marshal for the District of Huron and Detroit. At Hull's surrender he was made prisoner and was paroled. Proctor accused him of violating his parole, or even worse than that—of being in the American army while a British subject. Woodward had some spirited correspondence with Proctor regarding Forsyth and proved by the records of the Supreme Court that Forsyth had been admitted to citizenship on May 15, 1812. According to some accounts Forsyth was married twice, but there are no records of either marriage. His first wife was Mary Scott, and their children were:

(1) Maria, who married Benjamin B. Kercheval. He was born in Winchester, Virginia, April 9, 1793, came to Detroit where he held many important offices in the territory and state, and died in Detroit March 23, 1855. They were married January 18, 1821. Maria was born in January, 1801, and died February 10, 1882.

(2) Robert Allen Forsyth (who is mentioned in this record) was born in 1798, married Maria Howard, sister of Henry Howard, November 6, 1826. She died October 4, 1890. Howard was elected mayor of Detroit in 1837. Robert Allen Forsyth is said to have been the first school teacher in Chicago. He was a cadet at West Point 1814-1817, major in the U. S. A., and died at Detroit, October 21, 1849.

(3) Alice Marion Forsyth married Lieut. (later major) Thomas Hunt, September 29, 1821. She died in Detroit at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Tripler, and granddaughter, Mrs. Robinson, June 18, 1888, aged 85 years and six months. Thomas Hunt was the brother of Henry Jackson Hunt (see Note 113), who was mayor of Detroit in 1826, and of John E. Hunt, of Toledo.

Robert Forsyth's second wife was "Nancy" or Jane Little. They were married about 1808 or 09, and had one child, Jane Cameron Forsyth, who married Charles R. Brush, son of Elijah Brush and Adelaide Askin, October 15, 1833. Robert Forsyth died in Ohio in 1813, and his half-brother, John Kinzie, was appointed administrator of his estate. Three years later Kinzie was removed and Robert A. Forsyth, Jr., was appointed to fill the place, May 3, 1819. (See notes by C. M. Burton; Original Manuscripts, Burton Library.)

256. Warren Howard was appointed supervisor of roads and highways over Springwells, January 8, 1818, and jailer in

Detroit in 1820. (Michigan Pioneer Collections, Vol. 8, page 660; Proceedings of Common Council of Detroit.)

257. In 1817 Robert Smart's house and barn were on the east side of Woodward Avenue and the south side of Larned. This was in section 1. (Scrap Book 24a, page 59, Burton Library.)

258. Many of the names of those who petitioned for donation lots in the first, second and third classes do not appear in these Journals. Their claims were either ratified before October 24, 1808, or were rejected. In the first class were Mrs. Coates, who had a tavern in 1803 and 1804, and Gabriel Godfroy, Jr. They both applied for their donation lots in 1807. In the second class is Mrs. Eberts, wife of Dr. Herman Eberts, who was born in Augsburg in 1753, came to America as a surgeon with a Hessian regiment. As Marie Françoise Huc she married the doctor about 1780 and came to Detroit in 1791, where they became naturalized by the terms of Jay's treaty. He served as coroner and sheriff at different times. After the fire he built a house on the other side of the river, at Windsor, and there he died, March 4, 1819. Late in 1804 Mrs. Eberts applied for a divorce from Dr. Eberts. A separation for two years was allowed and Mrs. Eberts went to live with relatives in Montreal. She never returned. At this time they had seven children living, one of these, Therese, obtained a donation lot in the third class. Thomas Welch was another applicant in the second class. His wife Elizabeth and daughter Peggy both received donation lots. (See Notes 77 and 78.) Thomas applied for his lot October 4, 1806, and at the time stated that he had two daughters, one of age.

In the third class were:

No. 24. Petition of Oliver W. Miller for lot or lots filed 10 September, 1806:

To the Honorable, the Legislative Board of the Territory of Michigan:

Gentlemen: As the absolute necessity of my absence from Detroit will debar me the honor of personally waiting on the honorable board, I take the liberty of stating to them that I should be happy to procure from government, the corner lot on the opposite side of Court House Avenue (or cross street) from Dr. Wm. McD. Scott's house, or if that lot should be previously disposed of, some other eligible situation worth of the expense of erecting large and costly buildings thereon, and I also beg leave to state to them, that as my line of business will require the occupancy of a water lot, I should also wish to procure the water lot opposite to Messrs. Abbott's store house.

I have requested my friend, Capt. C. Tuttle to wait upon the honorable board and any negotiation that he may think proper to make or enter into with them shall be sanctioned by and binding on my part.

To the Honorable, the Governor and the Judges of the Territory of Michigan:

Keene, who then lived with him. Also, one for Andre Raimond, then an inhabitant of said town, at present residing with the subscriber. To the Honorable, the Governor and Judges of the Territory of Michigan:

Copy of the claim of Elijah Brush, Esq., trustee for Alexander McKee, the younger:

On the 20th December, 1804, E. Brush filed notice of the above claim with the Register of the Land Office, at Detroit.

On the 19th of November, 1805, John Laughton was brought forward as a witness in behalf of the claimant, who being sworn deposed and said that he believes the late Alexander McKee acquired this lot by gift from the British Government through their officers, either Governor Hamilton, or Colonel DePeyster, that the said Alexander in his lifetime, to wit, about the year 1786, erected on the premises a large and commodious dwelling house at his own expense. The deponent estimated the cost of the said building at two thousand pounds at least.

George Meldrum was also brought forward as a witness in behalf of the claimants, who, being sworn deposed and said that, previously to the departure of Colonel DePeyster from Detroit, which he had for sometimes communicated, the commander-in-chief at Quebec, transmitted to the said DePeyster, as this Depo-nent then understood, letters of confirmation for all his official conduct during his said command, not only ratifying his Military conduct, but also giving a general sanction to everything done in his civil department, as respected lands, the Deponent always believed that the grant of said lot was made by authority of those to whom the necessary power had been delegated by the British Government. The deponent well recollects that the large and convenient dwelling house at present on the lot was built by the late Alexander McKee in the year 1786 and supposes he must have expended in the erection thereof the sum of two thousand pounds.

I certify that the foregoing is a true extract from the Register No. 5, pages 115 and 116, in my office.

No. 36.

James Anderson's Memorial to the Honorable Land Board, Detroit, filed 22nd January, 1807, claiming lots 4 and 49 S. 4 and protesting against their being deeded to Audrain and Campau.

To the Honorable the Land Board, now in session in Detroit:

The memorial of James Anderson humbly sheweth: That in the fall of the year 1805 your memorialist, being destitute of a house to accommodate himself and family and being desirous of building in the new Town of Detroit, applied to his Excellency, the governor and the honorable, the judges of the Territory of Michigan, for the assignment of a space of ground for the purpose. In pursuance of which application two lots were assigned him, the one number 10 in subdivision fronting the main street, the other in rear of said lot, and both fronting an alley of 50 feet wide, leading from said main street to the water. The two lots being so assigned your memorialist commenced buildings therein fronting the same upon said cross street, and dig a well in said cross street for the accommodation of his family. In the fall of 1806 your memorialist was informed that the plan of said Detroit was altered, and that the contemplated cross street would be disposed of in lots, being possessed of this information and feeling that his property would be materially injured by the contemplated alterations, he waited upon the Honorable Land Board and stated the peculiar hardships he must suffer provided said cross street would be shut up, and said lots granted to other persons than himself. His representations were immediately taken under consideration and the subject of complaint finally adjusted by the Honorable the Land Board to the satisfaction of your memorialist. The decision of the board as your memorialist understood, was that he should receive a deed for said lots, paying for the ground at the rate of Two cents for each square foot which he agreed on his part to do, and ever has been and still is ready to meet according to the settled terms of payment. Which agreement so settled the Honorable Board directed the Secretary to enter since which time your memorialist has called upon the said Secretary to see said entry, but was informed that no entry of said agreement was made. He therefore prays the Honorable Board, that the Secretary may be directed to make the entry now, that he may be admitted to the full benefit of said agreement. Your memorialist therefore feels it a duty he owes to himself and family to protest against all right, title and claim in Peter Audrain, Esq., to receive a deed of lot No. 10 in section No. 4; also against all right, title, claim or demand, in John Baptist Campau, Jr., to a deed of lot No. 49 in section No. 4. The same two lots, by virtue of said agreement with the Honorable Board, of right belongs to him the said James Anderson, for himself and in trust for Christopher Tuttle, Esq.

Therefore, he prays a hearing in vindication of said right and claim by him set up, in and to said two lots, when it shall please the Honorable Board to grant it to him, etc., and as in duty bound will ever pray, etc.

JAMES ANDERSON.

Petition of Charles Lafleur's claim to the lot sold Wm. Brown, filed 28th January, 1807:

To the Honorable the Legislature of Michigan:

The petition of Charles Lafleur humbly showeth that your petitioner did last year purchase a lot on the main street upon certain conditions of payments. That the said lot has been assigned as a donation lot to Dr. Brown.

The reason assigned for depriving your Petitioner of the said lot was because he had signed a paper making his election to remain a British Subject. Your petitioner begs leave to observe that it is true he signed the paper but his signature was considered as null by the Court of the general quarter sessions of the peace, as having been made too late, etc.

Your petitioner prays redress in the premises and in duty bound will pray, etc.

No. 35.

Jacob Smith's Petition to the Land Board for a deed for lot 4, S. 2, to himself and James Dodemead, January 22, 1807, filed 23rd January, 1807:

To the Honorable, the Commissioners of the Land Board, now sitting at Detroit.

Jacob Smith humbly sheweth that in the latter part of the summer of 1805 he entered upon building a House in Detroit upon lot 4, in section 2, with Mr. James Dodemead, with whom he then contemplated entering into a general co-partnership in merchandizing in said Detroit. They proceeded upon their joint account with said house, thro the residue of the summer and the ensuing fall, and until the same was completely covered in, one chimney erected., etc., when he was obliged to visit the Indian Country on business where he was some time detained. On his return, much to his surprise, he found John Dodemead and family in possession of said House, and he, presuming by the consent of the said James, in which said House the said John has ever since owned, contrary to the wishes of the said Jacob. The said Jacob further states that in erecting said House, in furnishing material, employing mechanics, laborers, etc., about the same, he has expended a large sum of money, to wit: between five and six hundred dollars. The said Jacob further states that he has repeatedly applied to the said James on the subject of the said house and for a settlement and has been as repeatedly put off by the said James, sometimes referring him to the said John Dodemead, and sometimes assigning other reasons for his refusal, which circumstances induced the said Jacob to believe that the same James and John have combined together to defraud the said Jacob out of his interest in said House by obtaining a deed of the lot and immediately transferring the same to some other person. Added to the circumstances which have come under the view of the said Jacob, he has been informed that the said James has procured a provisional assignment of said lot, as his donation lot without even disclosing the interest of the said Jacob in the house thereon erected. Therefore the said Jacob, acting on the equity of his case, and that this Honorable Board will cause justice to be done in the premises, protests against any right in the said James, to receive a deed of said lot in his own name and to his own individual use. The said Jacob therefore prays this Honorable Board that a deed of said lot and premises may issue to the said Jacob and the said James, to hold the same to them and their heirs as tenants in common, under such regulations and restrictions upon the said Jacob as to the payment of a moiety for said Lot as to said Land Board shall seem meet and proper, and as in duty bound will ever pray, etc.

Sol. Sibley, for estate of McComb, filed 13th April, 1807:

To the Honorable, the Land Board:

Alexander McComb and the heirs of William McComb, deceased, in right of their father, claim title to four several lots or parcels of ground situated in what is called the Old Town of Detroit, which they pray may be confirmed and adjusted, to wit: one lot of 30 feet in front by 54 feet in depth, French measure (more or less), bounded in front and rear by St. Ann and St. James Street, on the east northeast by house and lot tenanted by A. Cook, on the 11th of June, 1805, on the west southwest by the alley leading to the fort called New St. Germain Street; Also one lot of 30 feet in front by 65 feet in depth, French measure (more or less), bounded in front and rear by St. James Street and St. Joseph Street, on the west southwest by New St. Germain Street and on the east northeast by a lot and house belonging to United States, called the Clothing Store, the same being purchased by said A. McComb and W. McComb and Sampson Fleming; Also one lot of land bounded in front on St. Ann Street, in rear on St. James Street, on the east northeast by lot in possession of John Conner on the 11th of June, 1805, and on the west southwest by Small Street or lane being 40 feet, French measure, in front and rear by the depth from St. Ann to St. Joseph Street; Also one lot of ground situated in said town of — feet in front by — feet in depth, bounded in front by St. Ann Street, in rear by St. James Street, on the east northeast by house and lot of G. Godfrey, Jr., on the west southwest by lot in possession of John Conner on 11th June, 1805, being the same formerly purchased of Wallace Sharp & Company, which said several lots and parcels of ground the said Alexander McComb and heirs of William McComb in right of their father, pray may be confirmed to them to hold as tenants in common and as in duty bound will ever pray for.

Certificate of Thomas Smith, surveyor, in favor of A. Longon, filed 13th April, 1807:

Mr. Longdon purchased a lot at auction on the west side of the cross street and by mistake erected a building some inches over the line on a lot intended for Mr. Gouie, but Mr. Gouie's renouncing his claim and to cover Mr. Langdon's improvement, Mr. Bates and myself, on the application of Mr. Landon gave our consent that he should take possession of that lot intended for Mr. Gouie subject to the approbation of the Honorable Legislative Board.

Given under my hand this 12th day of April, 1807.

THOS. SMITH.

Petition of Augustus Longan, filed 14th April, 1807, for a lot purchased by him, adjoining Gouie's, to be deeded him, adverse claim, Robert Smart.

To His Excellency, the Governor and the Honorable, the Judges of the Territory of Michigan:

The petition of your petitioner humbly showeth that in as much as his case with Mr. Robert Smart is now drawing to its close, he thinks fit respectfully to recall to your memories, facts to which he presumes if due weight is given will or at least ought evidently to show that his claim is founded upon the broad basis of equity and justice: It is as well known to yourselves as to your petitioner, that a certain part of the ground in question was first of all reserved for the extinguishment of the ground of Mr. Gowey in the old town, and that either owing to its inferiority or more likely to the unfavorable opinion that everyone formed of it, Mr. Gowey declined taking it, it is likewise known to your honors that about this time a number of lots were put up at Public sale, amongst others was the lot or as it then was an overflowed marsh which in the eyes of every one but those of your petitioner appeared more calculated for the swine to wallow in, than for any improvements, notwithstanding this general opinion, notwithstanding the toil he must unavoidably undergo in draining off and filling in the same, notwithstanding the scoffs and mockery of the Public, your petitioner purchased this lot, adjoining the one then in reservation for Mr. Gowey, went industriously to work and by the sweat of his brow and a steady perseverance overcame all the difficulties that offered themselves in the draining and filling up of the same. he then went on to erect a house thereon; shortly after this if he is correct, the Governor and Chief Judge actuated by laudable sentiments of compassion left this for the City of Washington in order to represent the state of the poor inhabitants of Detroit and to obtain from Government something favorable to their interest not long after this Mr. Smith, the then surveyor (as appears by his certificate) in running over the lots discovered that your petitioner had through a mistake to which his non-acquaintance with the plan of the town subjected him, put his house somewhat over the line of Gowey's lot and in consequence of the representations of your petitioner and of the industry he had shown in changing a mere marsh into a fine and valuable piece of ground, and thereby not only adding to the embellishment of the town, but saving the inhabitants of this quarter of the town from the pernicious effects of marshes and stagnated water, in consequence of this does he say, Judge Bates who then acted under certain restricted powers, which the honorable Board has in divers instances acknowledged to have given him, thought fit, Mr. Gowey having previously relinquished his claim, to grant to your petitioner the said lot, under the encouragement given by Judge Bates and the full assurance of his title being at least as good and if not more so than any other, he picketed it in; as for what has since occurred and how and on what principle Mr. Smart comes forward and claims the same, your honors are better informed of than your petitioner. Your petitioner will not undertake to comment on the great injustice of depriving him of what he humbly conceives he is justly entitled to, nor on the slightness and invalidity of Mr. Smart's claim, but rests the whole on the equity and justice of his own, joined with the disposition of your honors to do full justice to all, and to give encouragement where encouragement is due and as in duty bound your petitioner ever will pray.

Your petitioner as an Inducement to your Honors, to take her case into your immediate consideration states that she is incumbered with a large family of young children, four of whom are now confined to their Beds with lingering Fevers, who for some time past have been supported by her Charitable Neighbor, on whose liberality she would not have to trespass provided this Honorable Board of Commissioners would put your petitioner in possession of her said Donation or pay her the value thereof.

To the Commissioners for the City of Detroit:

The Humble petitioner, Abraham Geel, sets forth in his memorial that His wife is entitled to a Donation Lot in the City of Detroit, and that he now occupies No. 63 in section No. 1; that he has made considerable improvements on said lot. He likewise understands that Sol. Sibley, Esq., agent for Isaac Hunt, Late a citizen of Detroit, has located on said lot, your petitioner further States that He is of opinion that He ought to be allowed a preference of Said lot, as he is now an Inhabitant and has made Large improvements in this city and will continue so to do, and should the Honorable Commissioners be of opinion that the Lot which he occupies ought not to be granted to his Wife, she being entitled only to Draw in the second or third class, He will in that case agree to pay to the Detroit Fund the sum of twentyfive dollars as a difference of Quality between the Lot which He occupies and those in the second or third class, and your petitioner, as in duty bound, etc etc.

John Baldwin, to part of Jos. Campau's lot in O. T. near the Church, granted by Governor and Judges to Charles Poupard, and by Poupard assigned to Baldwin.

To the Governor and Judges of the Territory of Michigan.

Gentlemen: The undersigned respectfully requests and prays you to set in your capacity as commissioners under the act of Congress, in order to decide that which is right and just in his case, the circumstances of which are, that on the 26th day of December, 1808, the Commissioners confirmed and granted part of Joseph Campau's lot in the old town near the Church to Charles Poupard, alias Lafleur, and that on the 5th May, 1809, the said Poupard conveyed his right and title in and to the said lot to the undersigned, and that it since appears that although a deed has been made out to said Campau for ground in lieu of said lot, he has not thought fit to relinquish in writing the same to the Governor and Judges, which operates much to the injury of the undersigned, who flatters himself that such measures will be taken as may secure him in a good title to the said lot.

JOHN BALDWIN.

Petition for deed for lots 32, 33, 34 and 35, Geo. McDougall, June 3rd, 1811. Presented and granted, deed ordered.

To His Excellency the Governor, and Honorable Judges of the Territory of Michigan, acting as Commissioners under the Act of Congress dated April 21, 1806:

The Memorial of Geo. McDougall of the City of Detroit

Humbly sheweth,

That your Memorialist became a purchaser of lots No. 32, 33, 34 and 35, at public auction, on the 6th March, 1809, and duly paid to Wm. McD. Scott, twelve dollars fifty cents, being the first payment thereon, but finding shortly after that the sale of these lots, being part of the Detroit Commons, gave almost general offense to the Proprietors in the old Town and in the Country, your Memorialist did not apply for a deed at the time, nor did he give his notes, for the last payments, in hopes that a petition to your Honors then in circulation on the subject of said lots, would be the means of frustrating the same. He nevertheless tendered the amount of the second payment to the Treasurer on the 7th September, 1809, and again on the 6th March, 1810, $37.50 as the same and last payment thereof, which Mr. Brush declined receiving inasmuch as the second payment was not offered in season, as may be more fully seen, reference being had to Certificates herewith handed in.

Your Memorialist having on this day paid to E. Brush, Esq., aforesaid, Treasurer of the Detroit Fund, his receipt ready to be produced, forty dollars forty-two cents, being the balance and interest due on said four lots, in conformity to a late resolution of the Board, humbly trusts that a deed for the same may be made to him by your Honors without loss of time, and as in duty bound will ever pray, etc.

Petition of Stephen Mack, Shubael Conant, Henry J. Hunt, and Abraham Edwards, relating to sundry lots for erecting a steam mill, etc.

Presented and filed December 20th, 1816.

A. E. WING, Secretary.

To the Governor and the Judges of the Territory of Michigan:

Gentlemen: Believing that a manufactory of flour in the City of Detroit, by the agency of steam, would be of great advantage to the Territory at large and particularly to the City of Detroit, we have agreed to make the experiment if assured of the patronage of the local Government.

In order to the prosecutions of the establishment with success, both as regards the public and the proprietors, the items of expense must be kept steadily in view, and such measures adopted as are best calculated to reduce these as low as possible. The location of the works is therefore of primary importance in relation to the transport of stock, fuel, etc. A position upon the margin of the river, of sufficient extent for erecting the mill house, as well as other necessary buildings, is deemed indispensable by the Company. Such an extent of ground cannot be purchased of individuals within the city. The only alternative is the application we now make, for a grant of lots Nos. 164, 165, 166, 167, 168, 169, 170, 171, 172, 173, 174, 175, 178 and 179 in section 4, or so much thereof as are at the disposition of the Governor and Judges.

The lots here mentioned, if granted, can be filled in and made convenient to answer the views of the Company. It is expected that they will be conveyed on early and liberal terms.

We are now prepared to enter upon the negotiations, and to close a contract of purchase, whenever convenient to the Governor and Judges, presuming that the conditions of sale will be liberal. We are anxious for an early decision—arrangements will be made by the Commissioner for filling in the lots immediately on receiving a deed. A detached view of the objects in contemplation by the Company will be given if required.

With sentiments of respect we are, gentlemen,

Your most obedient servants,

Protest of the corporation of the City of Detroit to certain water lots being sold by the Governor and Judges sitting as a Land Board.

To His Excellency the Governor, and the Hon. the Judges of the Territory of Michigan, Present:

Gentlemen: The undersigned, trustees of the city of Detroit, are informed that it is the intention of the Governor and Judges to sell the grounds covered with water, lying in front of the City of Detroit, and that they will be sold as comprising a part of the ten thousand acres of land, donated by the United States for the purpose of erecting a Court House and jail in said City.

The trustees, on inspection, are of the opinion that the ground in question is not embraced in that grant, that the same being covered with a navigable water, and embracing the front of the City. The exclusive use thereof is a fit subject to be regulated by the corporation, if however, it should be determined that the corporation have not now authority to use or regulate the use of said ground such an authority ought to exist, the necessary measures will be adopted by the corporation at the ensuing session of Congress to obtain a grant, embracing the whole of the docks in front of the City. The trustees, on behalf of the City, request that the intended sales of the lots, lying in front of the City of Detroit, and below high water mark, may be suspended until the experiment may be made with Congress for a grant to the corporation of said grounds.

With sentiments of high respect we are, Gentlemen,

Your obedient servants,

Petition of Mrs. Isabelle Macomb, March 3, 1817.

To the Governor and Judges of the Territory of Michigan:

The petition of Isabella Macomb, widow, humbly sheweth:

That on the 17th day of January, 1816, William Macomb, by his deed of the same date, executed and delivered your petitioner for a valuable consideration therein expressed, conveyed to your Petitioner to hold to her and her heirs, her rights and interest in and to certain lots of ground, situated in the Town of Detroit, derived and acquired under the will of his deceased father, William Macomb. Your petitioner is advised that the Governor and Judges have adjusted the title to said lots so claimed, and have ordered other lots located on an equivalent, and that deeds are directed to be made out and delivered the said William and David, upon certain conditions expressed in said order instead of the said David and your petitioner, which said order if acted upon as it now will, as your petitioner is advised, materially effect and prejudice the interest of your petitioner acquired under the conveyance of the said William as above stated. Therefor in as much as your petitioner has acquired by purchase the right and interest of the said William Macomb, in and to said lots in the Town of Detroit, for which said lots are offered as an equivalent, she prays that the order of the Board may be altered and amended in such manner as that the deeds of the Governor and Judges may be made to your petitioner and David Macomb and not to David and William Macomb as by the order now entered is contemplated, and as in duty bound will ever pray.

T. Smith's advice contained in Sundry Enclosed Letters relating to Surveys of the City.

Memo.—Mr. Smith has began to draw a map of the City on a large scale in separate sections in order for to preserve the numbers and the length of the lines, and he thinks it would be necessary to have also a map drawn upon a smaller scale for the engraver, with an Index of reference for the loss of the original would be attended with evil consequences. Capt. McCloskey would be a proper person for to complete these draughts.

Smith to Board. Letter.

To His Excellency, the Governor and the Honorable Judges:

Mr. Smith, being about settling his son in business was necessitated to meet his little matters, and to make it convenient he made an arrangement with Mayor Mack in respect to what is due to him by the treasury, by which, and taking into consideration his expenses and disbursements, his allowance will not exceed three dollars per day.

When he purchased the lots he requested an order on the treasury, but not obtaining it, he had to pay the first instalment in lots 102, 103. In December, 1817, his account was liquidated for that and the preceding year, and as he would had interest to pay the treasury, he presumed that what is owing to him by the treasury ought to be reciprocal, all which, however, he respectfully submits.

Protest, December 12, 1818. Th. Rowland for J. Eastman.

Filed in my office December 12th, 1818.

To the Honorable the Governor, and Judges of the Territory of Michigan:

The undersigned would respectfully represent that on the ninth day of January, 1812, water lots 176, 177, 178 and 179 in section four in the City of Detroit were granted to Jonathan Eastman, then of Detroit, by a resolution of your honorable Board, at the rate of one third of a cent for each square foot and that subsequently on the 12th day of August, 1812, a deed was signed and delivered to said Jonathan Eastman, he having previously signed a mortgage to secure the payment of the sum of fifty one dollars and 33½ cents in conformity with your resolution of the 18th January, 1812, that the deed so signed and delivered to said Jonathan has been lost during the late war, that the said water lots have since been sold at public auction, therefore the undersigned begs leave to protest, and does hereby protest against any transfer which has been made or may be intended to be made of the said lots as thereby manifest if justice would be done to the said Jonathan Eastman.

Detroit, 11th December, 1818.

THOMAS ROWLAND,
Agent for J. Eastman.

James May's Report filed 12th May, 1819.

To the Governor and Judges of the Territory of Michigan:

The undersigned, in obedience to your request of yesterday respecting Benjamin Woodworth's account of extra work, done on the new Jail, begs leave to report that the following Items, in his opinion, are and ought to be considered as Extra work, as not included in his contract, viz:

Planking the sides, and laying the floors of eight cells on the first floor.

Laying the floors of eight cells, in second story.

Ditto the floors of large hall.

Ditto the floors of Debtor's Hall.

Putting up a partition in debtor's apartments.

Making two doors and frames for ditto.

Putting in irons for ditto.

Making a closet for kitchen.

N. B.—It was originally intended that the Walls of the cells should be plastered, and the floors laid with Brick, also the front and debtor's Hall, were to have been laid with Brick, and was part of the Mason's contract it was judged proper to have the Walls lined and the floors laid with oak and pine plank, which reduces so much of the Mason's work, and must be deducted from their contract.

Detroit, May 13, 1819.

JAMES MAY,
Superintendent.

Thos. Smith's Deposit, May 13, 1819.

Detroit, 13th May, 1819.

Sir: From the conversation I heard yesterday I am induced to lay the following statement before the Governor and the Legislative Board and that in justice to me they will be pleased to allow it to be filed with the archives of the City.

Detroit was laid off in the year 181-- according to an idea suggested by Mr. Justice Woodward which required more than ordinary pains to be rendered practicable. Lots were granted on that plan, and afterwards on a second plan by Mr. Abijah Hull, but after the late war the principal documents were lost and no memorandum left of the lots that had been ceded. This caused a third plan unavoidable and being without a date it subjected the present Board to give away lots that had been already granted. This is the only inconvenience that I can perceive except the deviation of Mr. Hull from the principles of the plan which has thrown one lot into the grave yard, and made an alteration in some of the courses near the Public wharf, and in the few instances where the numbers deviate from the grant both numbers are inserted in the new Plan, which together will show that every attention was paid on my part to regularity.

As to the new prison it will not stand the criticism of an architect, its proportion is lost, and is not fire proof which might have been with very little more expense, and therefore the Plan was not followed. And lest any reflection might be made on me by those unacquainted with circumstances, I stand ready to answer. I have the honor to be, sir,

Your most obedient servant,

THOS. SMITH.

To AUSTIN E. WING, ESQ., Secretary.

Smith Communication to the Board. 1819.

To the Honorable, the Members of the City Land Board at Detroit:

September 15, 1819.

Gentlemen: I attended two Boards to explain some apparent errors in the City Map, but nothing appeared as imagined, although from the confused state of materials I had to work upon and the hurry to get the business through it would not be surprising to find some trifling errors, but I do not know of any, nor were any shewn to me except such as before existed. The apparent errors arise from the irregularity of the numbers—two deeds of different numbers for the same lot, and consequently both numbers were necessarily inserted. On the other hand I was bound by an erroneous plan of Mr. Hull sanctioned under the authority of a former Board—and to conform to the series of numbers on the granted lots I had to place two numbers on some of the ungranted but that is of no consequence, as it is as easy to describe a lot with two numbers, as one, such as I have frequently seen in the course of my operations.

In the Range adjoining the English Grave Yard Mr. Hull or some other surveyor made the lots 50, and some 60 feet for which deeds have been issued, but I found that they could not be more than 50 without encroaching on the Graveyard which is already too contracted—and in which Range I discovered a vacant lot or one for which no claimant has yet appeared.

The book of sections could not be found for some time and as I had neglected taking a receipt for the public documents it gave me some uneasiness, although it would have been as well if it never had been found, for to follow the unalterable proportions of the Plan it was impossible to conform precisely to that book.

During a week stay in town I discovered that the idle talk about the errors originated with designing Persons; and that those pretended errors might appear more plausible; two of Ber-thelet's lots were described in the River by a formal Plan; two lots of Col. Richard Smyth, and Robert Smart in the center of a section, and one lot claimed by Mr. Audrain on the Military Square reported 1,300 feet more or less than it contained, and presented in that state to the Board for confirmation and further to prove that there was malice and design, the Theodolite I sent over expressly for the use of the Town, and left in charge of Mr. Ball is purposely mutilated and damaged so as to be utterly useless, and which cost me 150 dollars.

I have searched into the pretended difficulties and found none but what were caused by the alterations of former Surveyors, and which were put into a train to be got over. The Plan is practicable but it will not admit of Innovation without destroying its mathematical beauty and symmetry, and therefore, I was always adverse to the 200 foot streets, and the center streets with the recesses at the angles as a deformity and a nuisance; or any other theoretical Improvement as tending to lose sight of the principle.

It would seem that there were some reflections (respecting the Plan) but they were ungenerous, and without cause; for so great was the confidence of the Public; that lots were sold 50 per cent higher than they would have done before I undertook the then existing difficulties—and I believe that on Investigation I have not disappointed them, so far as it was practicable.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully,

Your most obedient servant,

THOS. SMITH.

P. S.—If my opinion was of any weight, it would be to take 40 feet off on each side of the 200-foot streets, close the center streets, and sell the land to the adjoining Proprietors; to grant no lots in the center area of sections, but reserve them for public gardens to be leased, which would produce a perpetual revenue, as well as conducive to the health of the Inhabitants and a place of depot in case of fire. The greatest fault is the smallness of the lots, which has prevented some from building decent houses, and which could not be remedied otherwise than by lengthening the base and augmenting the proportions.

These suggestions, I respectfully submit to your consideration, feeling an interest in the prosperity of a town in which I had no little share in its construction, deduced from the ideas of Mr. Justice Woodward. T. S.

Addressed to A. E. Wing, Esq., Secretary.

Petition to Governor and Judges by S. Sibley in behalf of R.
Forsyth; lot 18 and part of 17, 37 and 38, section 3, 1820.

To the Governor and Judges of the Territory of Michigan, acting under the Act of Congress of the 21st of April, 1806, providing for adjusting the title of land in the Town of Detroit, etc.:

Robert A. Forsyth, administrator de bonis non, which, were of Robert Forsyth, late of Detroit, claimed for and on behalf of the creditors, heirs and legal representatives of the said Robert Forsyth, deceased, humbly sheweth,

That the said Robert Forsyth in his lifetime, together with one William Smith, being then partners made a purchase of one George Sharp, of a house, lot and premises in the City of Detroit, to wit: on the 30th of September, 1798.

That the said George Sharp by deed of said date conveyed said property to John Kinzie, half brother of said Robert in trust, to hold the same to the use and for the benefit of said Forsyth and Smith, their heirs and assigns, and by said Kinzie Bond of same date to said Forsyth and Smith is made evident. That said Forsyth and Smith entered into possession of said property and continued to possess and occupy the same until the year 1805, when being embarrassed in business, it was agreed the said property should be sold for the benefit of the creditors of said Forsyth and Smith, and accordingly was sold at auction by James May, Esq., and by the deceased purchased in through Jonathan Scheffelin, his friend and agent, and permitted to remain in the name of said Kinzie for the use of said deceased, without any conveyance being made in pursuance to said sale at auction.
And that the said Robert, deceased, from the time of such sale at auction for his own use possessed, occupied and enjoyed said premises, receiving the rents and profits thereof to his use and benefit until ejected and turned out of possession by the British Army in 1812. That in 1805 the dwelling house, etc., were burned and afterwards rebuilt by the said deceased at his own expense. That the said Robert Forsyth died in the State of Ohio in the year 1813. That after the death of the said Robert, they named John Kinzie with a view to injure and defraud the creditors and heirs of the deceased in violation of the trust reposed in him by the deceased did undertake to exercise ownership over said property and to sell the same to one Richard Pattinson, since deceased, whose legal representatives make claim to said lot, claims under said sale, which your petitioner avers to be fraudulent, null and void, as having been made by collusion and without legal authority in the said John Kinzie. Wherefore for inasmuch as the legal and equitable estate in and to said lot and premises belongs to the creditors, heirs and legal representatives of the said Robert Forsyth, deceased, and not in the said Kinzie or his assigns your petitioner prays that the said title to said lot may be adjusted and that a deed for the same may be made to the legal heirs and representatives of the said Robert, deceased.

January 13, 1820.

R. A. FORSYTH,
Administrator to the Estate of Robert Forsyth, deceased.

On motion to the Board ordered that the deposition, William Forsyth, be taken at Sandwich before a Magistrate or other person to take depositions relating to the matters set forth in the petition this day filed by Robert A. Forsyth, it being suggested that the said Wm. Forsyth is dangerously ill, and not likely to live. On giving notice of the taking of such deposition to the parties concerned.

1820. R. A. Forsyth. Petition. Filed in my office October 23, 1820.

A. E. WING,
Secretary.

To the Governor and Judges of the Territory of Michigan:

The memorial of Robert A. Forsyth, administrator de bonis non, of Robert Forsyth, late of Detroit, deceased, humbly sheweth that the said Robert Forsyth in his lifetime was the rightful owner of a lot of ground with a valuable dwelling house and outbuildings thereon erected, situated in the City of Detroit. That the said lot of ground was held in the name of John Kinzie in trust for said Forsyth and one William Smith, and afterwards by said Kinzie in trust for said deceased. Your memorialist is informed that the said John Kinzie since the death of said Robert Forsyth pretends right and claim in and to said lot, and has moved your Honors for a deed for said lot and premises in _____ of the trust reposed in him by the deceased. Wherefore your memorialist in right and behalf of the heirs, creditors and legal representatives of said Robert Forsyth, deceased, appears and protests against the claims of said Kinzie to said lots and says that a deed for the same ought to issue to the heirs of the said Robert, deceased, and not to said John Kinzie, which he is ready to prove before this honorable board.

SOL. SIBLEY,

Attorney for R. Forsyth, Administrator.

Requisition, T. Smith, 1821:

It would appear that the public looks to Mr. S. for to rectify the errors that have crept into the survey of the city, but surely they cannot suppose that he is accountable for the several changes made by different surveyors during sixteen years without his knowledge.

Required that the city chain be sent to the blacksmith to be adjusted—one hundred cedar pickets—half a toise of rubbish stone. The chain man to be appointed and sworn, who may be wanted for a week or fortnight. One _____ stone of a foot square to be set in the line of Jefferson Avenue at the angle of the principal base, 5 or 6 feet in length. The general plan and the back plan wanted for inspection.

Memorial, filed April 11, 1825:

To the Governor and Judges of the Territory of Michigan, sitting as a Land Board under the Act of Congress, to settle and adjust titles to land in the City of Detroit:

The petition of the undersigned, citizens of the City of Detroit, respectfully represent that they understand a fractional lot, so-called, lying between the lots of O. and L. Cook and Joseph Campau, in section 2 of said City, is advertised to be sold this day at auction; that the said supposed fraction of a lot has always been used, occupied and enjoyed as a public alley of the said City, in the same manner as the alley on the opposite side of Jefferson Avenue, over against the said supposed fraction; that the present occupants of the lots adjoining the said fraction, purchased with the understanding that the same was an alley, to the use of which as an alley they, as well as the Citizens of Detroit, had a right.

They therefore pray that the sale of the said fraction may be suspended this day that time may be given to those interested to make inquiry or take such steps in the premises as may be deemed convenient and proper.

Joseph Watson's certificate respecting Catharine Godfroy. Donation lot. Claimed by Major Torrey, 28 October, 1829.

I certify that I well recollect that whilst I was acting as secretary to the Governor and Judges of Michigan as Commissioners under the act of the 21st April, 1806, a deed was prepared by me and signed by them to Catharine Godfroy, afterwards Mrs. Voyer, for a donation lot to which she had been decided to be entitled under the aforesaid act. I also well recollect that in all cases where the quantity contained in a lot exceeded five thousand feet, which was often the case in consequence of the shape of the sections, the deeds in such case were retained by me until the surplus was paid for, either at two cents per foot for lots in sections one and two or of one half of a cent per foot for those in the other sections, and if Catharine Godfroy's lot contained an excess as in my impression the deed was retained for this reason. An impression also rests on my mind that the excess of those lots arranged to the third class by the Committee appointed in 1807 to adjust the titles to lots was by resolution of Commissioners released on account of a disproportion in value, but without reference to the records, I cannot recollect to which class Catharine Godfroy was arranged.

Certificate in favor of Ira Waite, administrator on estate of Obed Waite.

It is hereby certified that on a final settlement of the account of Ira Waite, administrator on the estate of Obed Waite, deceased, for the said Obed, superintending in the erection of a Court House in the City of Detroit, agreeably to the provisions of the Act of Congress of April twenty-first, one thousand eight hundred and six, there is due to the said Ira Waite, as administrator aforesaid, or to bearer, one hundred dollars of which this certificate is given in evidence, and which shall entitle him or bearer at any public sales of the land granted by the said Act of Congress, to bid thereupon to that amount, provided, however, that the Governor and Judges for the Territory of Michigan, reserve the right of fixing a minimum value upon the said land offered and provided also, that no interest be allowed upon this certificate. By order of said Governor and Judges.

Letter to Major Biddle on the subject of the public Building, etc. Filed November 30, 1829:

Copy 500 words      5/—

To the Hon. John Biddle:

We, the common council of the City of Detroit, beg leave to call your attention to the subject of getting a law passed by Congress for the transfer of the residue of the Military property in this place to the corporation of this city; the importance of the measure particularly with a view to a speedy removal of the Magazine is too well known to you to need any comment from us. The site selected by Capt. Perkins to be received by the United States in exchange for their property here and which appears to be the most eligible for Military purposes is Springwells, and as there is a difficulty in obtaining a valid title for that property, we would suggest the propriety of ascertaining whether Congress would pass a law authorizing the taking of so much of it as may be wanted for Military purposes, we paying the amount for which it may be appraised.

We have understood that there might be some opposition to the removal of the quartermaster's department from this place and consequently of the transfer of so much of the property owned by the United States as is occupied by that department, we think it would be best to get a transfer of the whole of the property if practicable but we would not strenuously insist upon it. We would also suggest the propriety of having a proviso in the law authorizing the conveyance of the property to any individual in case of a failure on the part of the corporation to comply with its requirements. We have here given you our general views on this subject and rely with the most perfect confidence on your judgment and ability for the accomplishment of the object as shall be most for the interest of this city.

The Common Council are most solicitous for the immediate removal of the magazine now situated in the City. You are fully aware of the apprehension of most of our citizens on this subject. The Common Council several years since executed a bond, which has been accepted by the war department for the amount deemed sufficient for the erection of a magazine agreeably to the provision of the Act of Congress, approved May 20, 1826, and we trust, even if you should fail in procuring the exchange above mentioned, that you will procure an appropriation for the purchase of a site for a magazine without the limits of the city, so that a building may be immediately erected, and the old magazine removed.

THEODORE HOLDEN.

W. W. PETIT.

Dr. Wm. Brown, statement respecting E. Brush's Estate, Jefferson Avenue, 27 August, 1829:

I was present with Col. Elijah Brush, late of Detroit, at the time he made an entry in his book as Treasurer of the Detroit Fund against the Fund, for land falling within the continuation of Jefferson Avenue. Col. Brush stated that the Board had agreed with him to pay him, for the ground falling within the street, a certain quantity of land elsewhere—to pay him for removing certain buildings, and to continue the street through. That the Board had neither continued the street, nor paid him for the ground taken by them, and he therefore considered it just that he should charge the Board for the land. Col. Brush consulted me upon the subject of making the charge, and I advised it. I considered it at the time a fair charge, and told Col. Brush that under similar circumstances I should make it. I am satisfied that if Col. Brush had lived, no part of that charge would ever have been paid by him, under existing circumstances.

He also said, that Colonel Proctor had demanded the public property in the hands of citizens here, and that if he did not now secure his claim he should lose it. He apprehended that he would be called upon by the Commanding Officer for the balance appearing against him, and that it was better to settle his claim at once, and avoid paying anything to the British Government. And in this opinion I concurred.

WM. BROWN.
